The Canal Is Needed. 20,000 Cars a Day. Japan Balks at Words. Beaverbrook Drops In.

—By Arthur Brisbane—

WISELY CONGRESS revokes its own decision, and provides money for necessary work in Nicaragua by United States marines.

This country by treaty with Nicaragua, has acquired the right to build a Pacific to Atlantic canal, via the Nicaragua route.

Certain gentlemen of Nicaragua with big hats but small brains do not want the canal built. But this country and the whole world's shipping need the canal.

Congressmen fussing about Mr. Sandino, Nicaragua revolutionist, and sympathizing with his fondness for shooting American marines, represent their constituents poorly.

One hundred and twenty-three thousand automobiles were built in this country last week, twice as many as were built in the same week last year, when Ford was not producing.

An average of 20,000 automobile units per day, trucks and tractors included, is a marvelous record. "Where do they go?" is asked.

They go to replace old cars, and supply new ones to the growing army of prosperous and to the increasing number of "two and three car families." If every automobile running lasted five years replacements alone would call for 5,000,000 new cars a year.

The Japanese educated classes no longer believe that their Mikado is cousin to the Sun and Moon. But they are touchy about his importance and object to signing the Kellogg peace pact, which uses the words "in the name of the people."

These words Japanese will not sign, because they make it appear that the Japanese people, not the Mikado, rule Japan.

Japan need not worry about mere words. The people do not rule this country, either, to any alarming extent. Real ruling is done by well-organized classes that worry, when it seems good policy to do so.

But somebody or something must rule. Utah farmers here give the 120,000,000 Americans plenty of automobiles, refrigerators, telephones, electric lights and running water.

And the people are content, being told once every year, July 4, that they are free men.

Perhaps benevolent, intelligent plutocracy, that supplies automobiles and radios is better, on the whole, than agitated, experimenting democracy that would supply worry. It takes a nation more than one century to learn how to rule itself. In fact, no nation has ever learned thus far in history.

Lord Beaverbrook, owner of the London Express, and a great deal of money, is in America, cheerful about things in general. Cold weather has helped Britain's coal situation. British shipping and ship building have improved.

Beaverbrook, born in Canada and possessing brains, explains that bankers possess too much of the ruling power in England. "They look at the general financial situation, without regard to the industrial situation," says he.

Here the same men rule banks and industries, making one hand wash the other nicely. Beaverbrook comes to see how it is done.

Four men that murdered seven members of the Moran gang in Chicago do not intend to be caught if gang methods can prevent it.

Dr. L. W. Tacker revealed some information about the murderers. He was kidnaped, taken for a ride and told he would be dumped out dead.

The kidnapers changed their minds and sent him home to tell others. "Squealing in this case will not be good for your health." As a health resort for squealers, Chicago is a complete failure. To know the guilty and keep your mouth shut, or tell and be murdered is a difficult choice. Mussolini convinced the Mafia that there is no government a power above crime. But there is only one Mussolini.

Gangsters ask you to notice that as a rule they only kill each other and usually kill some one that is no loss to the community.

According to Dr. George Krause, German engineer, one and a half grams of silver, a quantity that you could hold between finger and thumb, will, properly prepared, purify ten billion gallons of impure water.

The possibility of influencing so much water with a little silver is not puzzling to those that realize, even vaguely, the number of atoms in one and a half grams.

Ancient physicians that prescribed gold and other precious metals powdered as medicine may have had a good idea, minus the knowledge to make it effective.

GUNMAN SHOOTS AT DEMPSEY IN BEDROOM; SUSPECT KIDNAP PLOT

Miami Beach, Fla., Feb. 25—Jack Dempsey narrowly escaped death by an assassin's bullet here early this morning after an intruder had made his way to a room occupied by Dempsey and Floyd Fitzsimmons in the Seaside Mansion of Harry Moore, millionaire Chicago hotel owner.

Whether the shot was fired in reprisal for his being ejected from the room, or was a deliberately intended attack, is a mystery, as the gunman fled after his bullet had buried itself in the wall near where Dempsey lay asleep.

Fitzsimmons, a Chicago promoter and old friend of Dempsey's, arrived here Saturday and roomed about midnight with Dempsey, who had been stopping with Moore, a few blocks up the beach from the Carey headquarters. They occupied twin beds and had been asleep for several hours when the noise of a door opening awakened them.

Here is Dempsey's story of what transpired:

"I saw someone looking at me through the door. At first I thought it was Henry Moore. Fitzsimmons, who was awake, also thought it was Moore.

MULLEN PLEADS GUILTY IN RITZ LIQUOR CASE

John F. Mullen, one of the four defendants in the Ritz conspiracy trial in Suffolk Superior Court, pleaded guilty today to all four charges against him.

The charges are: Conspiracy to steal, obstruction of justice, conspiracy to obstruct justice and solicitation to commit a crime.

His change of plea came as a surprise and created a dramatic moment at the opening of court as spectators settled down to listen to cross-examination of Special Officer Oliver B. Garrett, leader of the police headquarters liquor raiding squad.

Mullen is now serving a term of four years in State Prison for larceny of $12,000 in securities from a Webster woman when he was ser-

Marshal Foch Worse; Consultation Called

Paris, Feb. 25 (AP)—Condition of Marshal Foch was a matter of grave concern to his physicians this morning. It was known that a new spot of pulmonary congestion had appeared on one of the marshal's lungs.

Although the marshal was able to take some nourishment this morning, it was learned he spent a restless night. His temperature rose to 100 and his pulse to 92.

Nine doctors, Degennes and Davenine, visited him this morning and held a consultation of four physicians would be held later today.

DRUG PRESCRIPTIONS COME CHEAP AT $1.50 APIECE ON COAST

RECORD SHOWS GIRL BOUGHT DOPE FOR 85 CENTS

By A. M. ROCHLEN
(Copyright, 1929, by Los Angeles Examiner)

Los Angeles, Feb. 25—Dope for sale!

Deadly, habit-forming drugs can be had in Los Angeles or any other California city almost for the asking.

Investigators for the Los Angeles Examiner, co-operating with inspectors for the State board of pharmacy and the board of medical examiners, were able to obtain large doses of morphine in "trouble-proof," legal containers, with less trouble and expense than it takes to buy a pint of bonded whiskey.

All that was necessary to get this supply of narcotics—enough to form a habit and leave wreck and ruin in its path—was to follow the venomous trail of a confessed dope pedlar who this morning faces arraignment in federal court on charges of violating the Harrison narcotic act.

It cost "Miss Lucille Bland," investigator, just $2.35 to get 20 quarter-grain tablets of morphine. It is costing the United States millions of dollars and untold tragedies and sufferings to fight the menace of dope addiction.

And in this vital battle, now occupying the attention of thoughtful forces in the country, enforcement officials say they are almost powerless to combat narcotic traffic by physicians because state laws are "inadequate and unceratain."

COST $2.35

"Miss Bland" obtained the morphine on a prescription written for her by a Los Angeles physician. She walked into his office, a stranger, told him she had been a user of narcotics and wanted some morphine for relief from asthma.

The doctor made a brief examination, wrote a prescription for five grains of the drug and charged her $1.50 for the visit. It cost only 85 cents to fill the prescription, and the entire transaction was closed.

Before going to the physicians office, the young woman assured the officers that she is not and never has been a sufferer from asthma.

The Examiner is presenting these facts not to single out any one doctor, but because in this case, it believes, are to be found typical factors that go to make up a grave menace to the anti-narcotic program of the State.

So far as it is possible to ascertain, there was nothing illegal in the physician's acts. But it provides an amazing example of how death-dealing drugs can gravitate from legal, registered sources to the dark sinister haunts of the dope pedlar.

Frank Olea, Mexican, 27 years old, charged with being a pedlar, and with three previous arrests on narcotic charges to his record, started the trail that led to the Los Angeles doctor's office.

Olea was arrested by Federal Narcotic Agent Welliver and Detectives Dozier and Humphries of Capt. Seager's police narcotic squad, February 21. Officers who watched from nearby points said Olea passed two cubes of morphine to an informant and received $10 in marked money, on a dark corner in Belvedere.

TALKS FREELY

Awaiting arraignment this morning, Olea talked freely He told the writer he had been arrested before. He then told Capt. Seager, Detective Mack Berenzweig and the writer that he obtained his supply of morphine on a prescription.

"I just told thedoctor I had been a user and started again because I needed the stuff for asthma. I got his name from another user. First I got 15 grains. The next time he gave me a 30-grain prescription. I used a little and then I sold the rest," Olea said.

He declared he had obtained four prescriptions at $1.50 each.

The police reports say that the informant made three previous purchases from Olea. "I made sure this man was a user before I sold him the stuff," the prisoner said in his defense.

The Examiner decided to check up this man's story.

"Miss Bland"—an assumed name for the purpose of this investigation—was sent with Detectives Berenzweig and Evans, working under instructions from Chief of Police James E. Davis to the office of the doctor named.

The young woman had never seen him. He never laid eyes on her before.

Her story to him was simple. "Doctor, I am sick and need some morphine. A bus boy friend of mine told me you would give me a prescription," she told the physician.

"Have you ever used it before?" he asked.

"Yes, I used it up to eight months ago and then I quit. I came here from Denver and now my asthma is bad again," Miss Bland reported to the officers in her side of the conversation.

She said the doctor made a very brief examination of her chest.

DR. CABOT SAYS PEDLARS GET MOST OPIUM

Only one-ninth of the opium imported into this country is used for the relief of the sick. The remaining eight-ninths usually fall into the hands of drug pedlars, Dr. Richard C. Cabot told a WBZ-WBZA radio audience.

"The narcotic problem," the Boston surgeon said, has been treated as an international problem since 1912. Nothing of special importance had been done on it, although it is not and never has been a sufferer from asthma.

The Examiner is presenting these facts not to single out any one doctor, but because in this case, it believes, are to be found typical factors that go to make up a grave menace to the anti-narcotic program of the State.

So far as it is possible to ascertain, there was nothing illegal in the physician's acts. But it provides an amazing example of how death-dealing drugs can gravitate from legal, registered sources to the dark sinister haunts of the dope pedlar.

Demands Opium Output Be Halted at Source

Washington, Feb. 25—European nations, notably Great Britain, France and Holland, which derive great revenues from the production of opium in their colonies were castigated today by Rep. Porter (R) of Pennsylvania, chairman of the House foreign affairs committee.

Speaking to the Washington forum, Porter declared America can never be freed entirely from the grip of dope until opium production is stopped at the source.

As a corollary to overproduction Porter cited the over-manufacture of drugs by 43 European factories as one of the leading causes of the widespread drug menace in the United States.

Porter described the domestic drug situation as generally satisfactory, although he estimated the number of American addicts as between 500,000 and 600,000.

Two agents of the federal narcotic squad told of seeing a furtive handshake exchanged between McDonald and Griffin.

SOUTH END FULL

They pleaded not guilty to the complaints brought against them and were held in substantial bail awaiting federal grand jury action.

Denying his part in the alleged sale of six grains of morphine to Griffin, McDonald charged he had contracted tuberculosis while confined to Atlanta prison and confessed his addiction to the drug.

"How can I help coming in contact with men like Griffin?" McDonald pleaded before Commissioner Jenney. "Addicts like him live all around me and they know I am an addict, too."

"The South End streets are full of addicts," he continued, "and I cannot pass them by when they are able to help their pals who are short of dope."

Griffin made no effort to rebut the evidence presented by the federal agents in support of the charge against him.

"I have a good home in New Orleans," he told Probation Officer Richard D. McSweeney, "but I'm in this jam because I forsook the advice of father and mother."

John Costello of Vinton st., South Boston, and Frank McKenna of Malden st., South End, were the men arraigned in Roxbury Court on a charge of possessing narcotic instruments.

HELD IN $1000

The ginger ale bottle cap, alleged by police to be used in "cooking" drugs; the safety pin as a puncturing needle and the medicine dropper in injecting the drug into the pin puncture were found on the men.

Each was held in $1000 bail. Police reported that on the two men they also found clothing and jewelry taken from a house in Hancock st., Dorchester, and that the men confessed a burglary at the address.

unbecoming officers." Wallace was also charged with failing to return a prisoner in his charge to confinement, failure to report for duty and with using intoxicating liquors.

Cross-examined by Atty. Joseph A. Logan for McGrory, Conroy denied he was a stool pigeon.

FEARS FOR LIFE.

"I don't care if I have the reputation of being a stool," he said. "I am not. I'm not exactly afraid I don't care about taking a beating, but I don't want to pass out all of a sudden. I am not eating with the prisoners now because my life has been threatened.

"I know that McGrory and Wallace have friends among the prisoners and among the officers, too. Several prisoners have taken a crack at me since I came back."

The witness then viviously described the alleged party in Nahant, which, he said, was participated in by Officers McGrory and Wallace, prisoner Clarence Hoagland, who has since finished his term, and Conroy.

He told of how the party proceeded in a motor boat to Bass Point, where they tied up and then sought liquor.

FOUND "REAR BAR"

After nine they reached a hotel where, according to the witness, "Mr. Sawyer's orchestra was playing." He pointed out Sawyer in the hotel room.

"Hoagland said: "There's Bobby Sawyer over there," the witness continued. "I can get liquor from him."

"He called Mr. Sawyer over and introduced him to the officers. I was introduced as another captive. Sawyer told us to wait a minute and then returned with two bottles. We went out to his car and drank them, and then wanted more. I was feeling fine. Sawyer brought two more bottles and I put them in my pockets. Things started to get blurred then. We left the machine and led by Sawyer went to an old-time bar. It was a real bar with sawdust on the floor and a bartender in white.

"I was slipping. I went out on the piazza and got some air and then went back. Finally Wallace said: 'Let's get back to the island. I've got to go on duty.' It was around 1 o'clock in the morning. We got the bad news when I discovered all the liquor had leaked out of the bottles in my pockets.

"We got into the boat and started back and had almost reached the island when we met another boat with officers in it. They threw us a line which I caught and they pulled me overboard. Later I took a boat and rowed to Winthrop to get more liquor."

scratching sensation down her back. Pulling at her coat, she found it ripped open from collar to waist.

She did not get a glimpse of the "slasher."

The suspect under arrest is not believed to be the man who attacked Mrs. Foster. He was arrested in the subway by Officer Joseph Leahy of the Milk st. police station after a woman had complained that he was annoying her. Her clothing was not cut, but she said the man brushed against her.

At headquarters the prisoner said he was a taxi driver off duty. He said he was in town to pay a bill, and had just purchased the razor blades for his own use in shaving.

The blades were wrapped up when the police discovered them.

Eighteen of the 21 strange cutting crimes thus far reported have occurred in the subway, two in elevators of office buildings and the attack upon Mrs. Foster just outside the subway.

"It is the imperative duty of Elevated employes to detect and to cause the immediate arrest of the man or men who have been slashing the clothing of girls and women car riders," grimly announced Superintendent of Transportation James Smith of the Boston Elevated in a general order to starters, trainmen, gate-tenders, guards and street railway police.

At the same time F. I. Wilkins chief of Elevated inspectors and police, conferred today with Supt. of Police Michael H. Crowley of Boston, agreeing upon a "mystery plan" which the combined detective forces of the city and the Elevated system are to put into effect at once.

—probably three minutes—Fitzsimmons, said in a loud voice 'What do you want?'

"'Turn on those lights,' the man said. Then he said, 'Come on in, Joe.'

"As I arose from the bed the figure retreated into the hall. When I crossed into a bedroom and on into another room the man ran down the stairs.

"And when I attempted to follow a shot was fired. I ran back upstairs. Later we found the bullet imbedded in the wall.

"There was an automobile parked in the street, the lights were out.

GUNMEN FLEE IN AUTO.

"There was no telephone in the bedroom in which we were sleeping, and we could not reach the telephone downstairs because both Fitzsimmons and I thought one of the men was watching that spot.

"We watched the automobile, and it remained in the street nearly 20 minutes before it was driven away.

"The man who was in the doorway and who fired the shot was slender and about 5 feet 2 or 3 inches. He wore nothing on his head."

Dempsey seemed to be quite himself, even though he said "he felt a little shaky."

Dempsey dug the bullet out of the wall later and was carrying it this morning as a souvenir of an experience that is baffling him as he seeks a motive for the early morning intrusion.

SAW GUN IN HAND

Fitzsimmons says he saw a gun in the man's hand as he stood behind the bed and it is his theory that two men had broken in to take Dempsey for a "ride."

Dempsey is at a loss to account for the desperate chances taken by his assailant. Although the man spoke apparently to a confederate outside, nobody saw the second man and the one who fired the shot made a quick getaway.

Neither Fitzsimmons nor Dempsey thinks it was the work of a mere burglar or a "hop-head."

"The man spoke in a clear voice," said Fitzsimmons, "and he was business-like and to the point in the few words."

Dempsey made light of the occurrence late in the day. The incident was reported to the police of Miami Beach and an investigation is under way.

SEES SPINNING PLOT

"I know of no one here who should seek my life," Dempsey said. "I have given everyone here without a grant and there hasn't been an unpleasant incident. I guess somebody got into the wrong place. Anyhow, I'm glad it ended without anybody getting hurt."

Later in the day friends of Dempsey quoted the ex-champion as shifting to a kidnaping theory with rancour as the motive.

Fitzsimmons explained that he and Dempsey did not telephone police at the time because they would have had to go through a doorway in the direction from which the shot came.

FIN. COM. HITS HUB BUDGET

The surplus of $2,786,378.39 in the city's treasury at December 31 is not due to economies in administration, but to amounts received from the state, principally as excess income tax payments, from the Boston Elevated, from excess departmental receipts and other sources.

He declared that large sums are being wasted in the public welfare department by payment of doles to property owners who were classed as public charges. He charged payment of overtime to high-salaried officials in the sanitary service.

Dowling said the legislative committee on municipal affairs was the real city government of Boston, and properly so, "because the city Council gives little intelligent consideration to the budget."

URGES SAVINGS.

The finance commission report charges that the chairman of the city assessing department admitted that 17 assistant assessors are unnecessary; that in the election department the same is admitted, in which connection it points to "extravagant" furnishing of the quarters of the house officers with three davenports at $210 each, 10 chairs at $200 each, a radio and window draperies costing $441.

Lovingood's Love Turns Bad; Shoots

Knoxville, Tenn., Feb. 25 (INS)—Despondent over his unrequited love, Lee Lovingood, 28, today shot and fatally wounded Miss Beulah Hazel Wood, 22, and then ended his own life with the same revolver.

The shooting occurred at the home of Mrs. Lacy Harris, where the girl was a visitor.

Bad Funeral Check Gets Husband In Jail 6 Months

Charged with paying the funeral expenses of his wife with a bad check, Richard I. Webber of Huntington ave., Boston, in Quincy court today was sentenced to six months and fined $75.

Webber, who was arrested by Inspector Tracy of Quincy as a result of the publication of a notice of his marriage to Mary Brewster of Boston, was arraigned on three charges of larceny.

The chief complaint was made by Arthur H. Chandler, Brockton undertaker, who said that last June Webber tendered a $300 check for payment of his wife's funeral expenses. The undertaker gave him $60 in change.

GIRL SAYS MEN MADE HER 'LIE ABOUT GALLO'

Two men forced her to say that Gallo and not Cero murdered Fantasia, according to alleged statements of the girl as read in court today.

The statement read in court by counsel for Gallo was one alleged to have been made by Miss Romano in repudiation of her statement to Dist. Atty. Foley and Governor Fuller.

Her original statement to the prosecutor and the then Governor asserted that she was walking with Fantasia, her brother-in-law, in Salem st., North End, and that Gallo, an enemy of Fantasia, pulled out a revolver and shot him.

"Did you, in the case of another man charged with murder, repudiate statements you had previously made to the police?" Miss Romano was asked by defense counsel.

The question was objected to and a long conference followed at the bench.

Money transactions between Gallo and Cero had entered previously into testimony of the day, and were related by Cero himself under redirect examination by Asst. Dist. Atty. William R. McDonnell.

TELLS OF MONEY

Over the vigorous objections of William H. McSweeney, counsel for Gallo, the assistant prosecutor asked Cero to repeat answers to many questions put to him by police on the night he was arrested.

Q.—Do you remember being asked when Gallo gave you any money? A.—Yes.

Q.—What was the answer. A.—It was that day—Saturday—and he gave it to me at 36 Salem st.

Q.—Why did you stab Sam Gallo?

The question shot at Cero was protested by Atty. McSweeney and finally was ruled out by Judge Cox, after a long conference at the bench, one of many such conferences.

Q.—Who was the first person who visited you at Charles st. jail after you were arrested? A.—Frank Marino.

Q.—Cero said he met Marino in Malden on the morning of the murder day. Marino was talking with Gallo.

Q.—Was there a woman named Anna Marino that visited you there at the jail also? A.—Yes.

Q.—Do you know her by any other name? A.—Yes, by name Lilly.

Q.—Where did you first meet her? A.—I met her in Salem st. She is a stranger to me. She was with another girl talking to Gallo.

Cosimo Cerio told through his interpreter the story of his lone fight to save his brother.

He said the first he knew of Gangi's trouble was when he read an account of Gangi's conviction in Gallo's newspaper. Immediately, Cosimo came to Boston and, with Gallo, sought out William B. Scanlon, then counsel for Cero.

Later, and also with Gallo, the brother met Louis Smith, a chief witness in the case, and Gallo told Cosimo, the latter said, that he (Gallo) was willing to pay Smith $2500 for an affidavit stating that Cero was not the man Smith saw running through Prince st. after the shooting.

Safe Breakers Get $11 in Charlestown

Safe-breakers got $11.55 from one of two safes in the office of the Julius D'Este Co., Spice st., Charlestown, over the week-end, it was reported to police today.

The combinations and handles on both safes were knocked off, but the thieves were able to open only one.

MULLEN IS 'GUILTY' IN RITZ CASE

ducting a brokerage business in Milk st. and earned the sobriquet with the police of the "boy broker" because of his youth, and the "phantom broker," because of his penchant for doing business only by telephone. He is 29 years old.

Mullen was led from the court room to the detention pen immediately after his plea, leaving three defendants—Albert Sidlinger of the Wand Ref. Ralph Gross of Cranston, R. I., and Nicholas Cockinos, agent for the Watch and Ward Society—on trial.

The defendants are alleged to have co-operated in an attempt to get money from John F. Sullivan, proprietor of the Ritz Hotel on Columbus ave., following a liquor raid. They are alleged to have used the name of Garrett and other politicians in connection with his wife, and the policeman answered, "No."

Garrett denied ever having had any "personal conversations" with Sullivan. He denied knowledge of a letter alleged by the government to have been sent to Sullivan by "Mr. H.," the lawyer whose name is withheld at the trial because he is now dead. And he declared that a Miss Hatch, former coat room attendant at the Ritz, was no relation of his and did not get the place through him.

The witness said he lived on Blackwood at in 1925, 1926 and 1927 and admitted Miss Hatch lived there also.

Capt. George Patterson, next witness, denied ever having any understanding with Sullivan to grant the hotel immunity from prosecution, in exchange for a monetary consideration.

HINES HAD WARRANTS

Lieut. Daniel J. Hines, first assistant to Patterson, denied any such understanding. He declared information he told of being given warrants against five Ritz waiters which Cockinos had applied for.

A warrant, never served and which named a certain individual as receiving intimidating mail, and Ward witness also came into his possession, Hines said, and he kept it from all of the Ritz waiters but gave it to Asst. Dist. Atty. Doyle.

Hines said he testified at the trial of the Ritz waiters, but only regarding liquor analysis. He said the witnesses were Raymond L. Perry, his wife and Mrs. Ruth Bowen.

Hines said that while the trial was on, Cockinos told him the man wanted for intimidation was in court and Cockinos wanted him arrested, but Hines replied that the warrant had been handed over to the assistant district attorney.

The government closed its case and defense counsel opened.

Ralph Gross testifying in his own defense, said he became acquainted with Mullen when he was asked by his mother and grandmother to seek an attorney from the "boy broker" for more than $15,000.

He admitted being at the conference between Mullen and Sullivan when police were secretly listening behind a wall. Gross said he had been drinking that day and accompanied Mullen to the Ritz, where Mullen told Sullivan he said he told Sullivan not to pay any money. He admitted in subsequent conferences Mullen acted by the police in the way of remarks at that conference, but denied all the charges against him.

Gross said he knew Cockinos at Camp Devens and became acquainted with "Mr. H." while seeking an accounting from Mullen.

NAB BOYS, GIRLS FOR PICKETING

New York, Feb. 25 (AP)—Six Junior High School pupils—four boys and two girls—were arrested with nearly 100 adults today charged for picketing in the vicinity of plants affected by a garment workers' strike.

Two of the boys were leading an impromptu parade of pickets in Washington Heights when the youngsters were turned over to attendance officers of the board of education, who were told to take them to school

Favor Increase in "Dry" Penalties

Washington, Feb. 25 (INS)—The Jones bill, more than doubling the penalties for violation of the prohibition law, was favorably reported today by the House judiciary committee. It has already passed the Senate.

The $24,000,000 prohibition proposal was rejected by the House as it defeated a motion to send the second deficiency bill back to the Appropriations Committee for incorporation of the enforcement fund. The vote was 239 to 136.

INAUGURAL SHOW SEAT RUSH IS ON

Tickets for the Boston Evening American's great reproduction of next Monday's Presidential Inauguration ceremonies, to be given at the Boston Garden simultaneously with the actual events at Washington, are on hand and are being mailed out rapidly to hundreds of readers who have made early application for them.

Tickets for this event may be had free of charge by writing the Inauguration Program Editor, Boston Evening American, and enclosing addressed stamped envelopes with sufficient postage.

Although the seating capacity of the Boston Garden is enormous, it would be well for readers who wish to witness the Boston American's visual and audible reproduction of President Hoover's inauguration to make application for their tickets immediately so as to be sure of seats.

Telephone pictures, flashed over special wires of the American Telephone & Telegraph Co., movies and radio will tell the story of the colorful events of the day, commencing at 11:30 o'clock next Monday morning.

GOOD PROGRAM

Vaudeville and radio talent, and musical organizations of high rank in the field of public entertainment, will provide an ever-varied program, which will have all the dazzle and color of the great quadrennial national ceremony at the capital.

By means of the powerful public address system of the Boston Garden, the audience will receive all the sound features of the day's program with clarity which can be equaled by only the finest home radio receivers.

Capable reporters and skilled announcers will be stationed in scores of strategic points at Washington to observe and pass along to listeners the changing scenes before them.

Men will skim the skies in aeroplanes from which they will transmit their impressions which will be rushed over land wires. In the vicinity box at the White House gate, an announcer will watch for the first callers upon the new President, giving the waiting world the names of these first visitors who, by custom are recognized as those selected for cabinet posts.

TRANSMIT VIEWS

Camera men at various stations will film views to be transmitted by wire also instantaneously by telephoto process. These will be developed in Boston in record breaking time, to be flashed upon

MRS. WILSON SENTENCED IN SHOOTING

New York, Feb. 25 (AP)—Mrs. Esther Evans Deforest Wilson of Washington, D. C., was sentenced to a penitentiary term of six months to three years by Judge Charles C. Nott, Jr., in general sessions court today for shooting her husband, Dallet H. Wilson, a lawyer, in his office here last March.

Mrs. Wilson was convicted of assault in the second degree several weeks ago and was committed to Bellevue Hospital, where doctors pronounced her sane.

Wilson recovered from the bullet wounds and testified at the trial he believed the shooting was an accident.

8 NOW SOUGHT IN CHICAGO MASSACRE

Chicago, Feb. 25 (INS)—Eight men instead of five were in the murder party that carried out the St. Valentine's day massacre of seven Moran gangsters, according to information at the State's attorney's office today.

Three of the killers, two in police uniforms, entered the "Bugs" Moran liquor depot from an alley in the rear. Four entered from Clark st. by the front door. The eighth man remained at the wheel of a car.

This information, regarded as the most important yet revealed, came from a new witness, whose identity is being carefully guarded to save him from gangland's vengeance.

Meanwhile investigators were examining late clues which indicate the massacre was accomplished by members of a nation-wide ring of kidnapers and extortionists, with strong branches of their organization centered in New York, Detroit, Chicago and St. Louis.

'LOVE KIDNAPER' HELD IN $10,000

San Francisco, Feb. 25 (INS)—Formal charges of kidnaping will be filed against Mrs. Edna Sharp today, following her confession that she abducted Doris Virginia Murphy, 7, because she "loved her." The woman is held in $10,000 bail.

What defense Mrs. Sharp will make has not been decided. She indignantly denied, however, that she would take refuge in an insanity plea.

While police secured the city for a week, Doris was in possession of Mrs. Sharp, who told her husband Doris was her child by a former marriage.

Dutch Tug Will Tow Cairngowan to Port

St. John's N. F., Feb. 25 (AP)—The steamer Newfoundland, which had been towing the disabled steamer Cairngowan, reported today that she had left the Cairngowan and that the Dutch tug Humber was proceeding to the assistance of the disabled vessel. The Newfoundland is due here tomorrow.

The Humber, reported about 600 miles east of the Cairngowan, will tow the vessel to St. John's. The Cairngowan lost her rudder in a storm last week.

The domestic help problem is solved by taking a kitchenette apartment and the best are advertised daily in the For Rent columns.

FIGHTS FREIGHT TRAIN LIMIT

Proposed legislation to limit freight trains to 60 cars and to require use of additional brakemen on all freight trains with more than 40 cars would serve no good purpose not now protected adequately and would cost the Boston & Maine Railroad $1,000,000 a year for additional labor charges, aside from other added costs, it was stated today before the Public Utilities Commission by Atty. J. B. Brown, who presented the railroads' case in the increased-crew hearing.

He said this added burden would be felt in the final analysis by shippers and receivers of freight and that there would be an impairment of service that would seriously affect not only Massachusetts, in which the legislation is sought, but every other New England state.

Invalid Prelate to Join King George

London, Feb. 25 (AP)—Bognor, the Sussex coast resort on the Channel where King George is recuperating, may have another distinguished accession to its temporary population. It was understood today that the Most Rev. Cosmo Gordon Lang, archbishop of Canterbury, intends to go there for a month's sojourn. The archbishop was taken ill on December 23, only a few days after he had been consecrated as archbishop.

Married 35 Years, Woman Again Seeks Divorce

Unjust Taxes Hound Film Stars Even Into the Grave

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS
Motion Picture Editor of Universal Service

Los Angeles, Cal., Feb. 25—Day after day some new case where the payment of lately assessed back taxes causes grief and untold hardship to the screen actor, comes to our attention with the income tax returns of four and five years ago being disputed by the tax collectors.

Unless you know the specific cases of heartache and despair you could hardly believe this land of glorious freedom could be guilty of such rank injustice. A tragic illustration is the case of Larry Semon, who died a few months ago, penniless.

His wife, Dorothy Dwan, has probably earned $4000 since his death. The government immediately descended upon her and asked her to pay his back income tax, which would take every cent she has in the world. She has been paying her husband's hospital bills and his funeral bills and even for two suits of clothes he never wore.

ATTACHED HIS HOME

These burdens have left her in a state of nervous collapse. Her mother was forced to finance a trip for her to rest away from Los Angeles and recuperate. Back income tax seemed to be Larry Semon's nemesis. His money was tied up for two years in a lawsuit that he had with Vitagraph Film Company. Then the government came after him for $10,000. He was only able to raise $6000, and so his home was attached for the remaining $4000 due.

The last six months of his life, when his health was in a precarious state and he was unable to get steady employment, he was harassed and worried to a point where death came as a welcome relief. That closed his problem, but it did not exempt his wife from being tormented by tax collectors who have made her days a nightmare.

Citizens with regular incomes can understand now, perhaps, how onerous this taxation is upon those who have irregular incomes. Certainly, citizens who have incomes from property or from capital invested should be able to understand the injustice of a system which robs the actor and the professional man of the earned income which is really his capital.

Actors who usually give to the world the best that is in them nearly always die poor. Few players have any conception of business affairs. They keep no specific set of books and no detailed record of their expenditures.

WIFE MUST PAY

Mrs. Earle Williams is another victim. She and her little daughter, Joan, were moderately provided for in the will left by Mr. Williams when he died a few years ago. For years before his death Mr. Williams worked only intermittently. What money he bequeathed was derived from the salary earned during the few years of his screen success. His salary and earned income naturally and automatically ceased at his death.

How was he to know that his income tax which he made out in 1923-24 would come under the eagle eye of the tax collector? How was he to know that certain exemptions he claimed would be questioned by the government?

Mrs. Williams has received a bill for more than $6000, asserted to be due the government for discrepancies in Mr. Williams' tax returns filed before he died.

TAX TAKES ALL

How is his widow to explain what he spent and what he didn't spend? His records of a personal nature (if not of an organized business nature were not kept systematically. How is she to know whether or not that money can be rightfully collected? All she knows is that paying such a sum will incur a

SWEDEN NOW IN ICY GRIP

London, Feb. 25 (AP)—Winter tightened its hold on those countries of Europe bordering the Baltic sea over the week-end.

Southeastern Sweden suffered another violent snow storm and deep drifts were reported from both city and countryside.

The Telegraf-Byran telegraph service was at complete standstill with the ferries stuck fast in the ice between the island of Borholm and the sound. The entire Baltic presented just such an aspect as this small sketch, frozen over with a great number of ships in its icy grasp.

Great Britain's temperature has fallen again under the influence of a wind from the east. Weather bureau warnings of very cold winds with frost have been issued.

SEE MOVE TO OUST ALFONSO

London, Feb. 25 (AP)—Constantly growing unrest under the dictatorship of Gen. Primo de Rivera, Spanish Premier, was reported from points in Spain and along its borders today.

Information emanating from Madrid was that in the attitude of some politicians, formerly powerful in Spanish politics, Conservatives saw the birth of a great anti-monarchist movement.

Two men, Melquiades Alvarez, former president of the Chamber of Deputies, and Miguel Maura Gomez, former minister, were mentioned as refusing to participate in an appeal to King Alfonso on the ground that they would have nothing more to do with the Crown which has made itself, they say, incompatible with their political ideals.

U. S. WARSHIP JOINS ALLIES' CHINA FLEET

Chefoo, China, Feb. 25 (AP)—The United States cruiser Trenton arrived at Chefoo today to protect American lives and property during the disturbing military situation. The trip from Manila was in response to requests from Le Roy Webber, American consul here.

Meanwhile the Japanese also were increasing precautions for protection of their nationals and property. Another Japanese destroyer and a first-class cruiser, the Kiso, arrived here while still other war craft were sent to Lungkow, occupied by the revolting nationalist soldiers.

The arrivals brought foreign warships here to seven, five of which are Japanese.

Reports reached here today that the revolting soldiers under the leadership of Chang Tsung-Chang had razed 50 villages in the neighborhood of Lungkow. Their motive was unexplained.

Says Attendance at College Is Near 'Crest of Wave'

Cleveland, O., Feb. 25 (AP)—Dr. Earl Hudelson of the University of Minnesota told members of the American Education Research committee in an address today that a nation-wide survey of the relative efficiency of large and small classes in colleges has shown many definite advantages for the large classes, and no very material advantages for the smaller classes.

Dr. Hudelson also told the committee that the "crest of the wave" of attendance in colleges and universities was in sight, if it had not already been reached.

CARDINAL VICO DIES IN ROME

Rome, Feb. 25 (AP)—Death of Cardinal Vico, aged prefect of the Sacred Congregation of Rites, early today leaves the College of Cardinals with 28 Italians and 33 foreigners—the greatest discrepancy since the 14th century.

Nine seats are to be filled, and in view of this latest loss to the college there was new talk today of a possible secret consistory March 18, to be followed by a public consistory March 21, at which some selections for the vacancies might be made.

It was thought if new cardinals were named they would not exceed five in number as custom is to leave about four vacancies for possible creations by a succeeding Pope.

There is considerable speculation as to whether Pope Pius will name five Italians to the vacancies or include some non-Italians.

Free Dr. Atteridge on Serious Charge

A serious charge involving Dr. Arthur J. Atteridge, 46, of East Broadway, South Boston, and a 14-year-old nursemaid was dismissed today when Dr. Atteridge was arraigned before Judge Day in South Boston Court. After a hearing Judge Day found no probable cause.

Miami Beach, Fla., Feb. 25—Harvey S. Firestone, one of the world's greatest rubber magnates and a keen student of business conditions, predicted in an exclusive interview today that under the administration of Herbert Hoover the United States "will have the most prosperous four years it has ever had."

"I do not see why we should not have increased prosperity and better times in every way under Mr. Hoover's administration," said Mr. Firestone. "The fundamentals are there, our economic situation is sound basically. We are progressive people.

"America is reaching out for world trade on a big scale, and never before have we had a man in the White House who has had more natural ability, experience and preparation than has Mr. Hoover to guide the nation in its international policies. He is the ideal leader for the country."

Mr. Firestone, a close friend of Thomas A. Edison and Henry Ford, is credited with breaking the British rubber monopoly. He sat at his desk in his shirtsleeves and talked of business and of his ideas on success and how to achieve it.

The Firestone company has factories at Akron, O., Hamilton, Ont., Brentford, Eng., and New Bedford, Mass.

"What do you regard as America's outstanding economic problem?" Mr. Firestone was asked.

"Merchandising and distribution."

KERENSKY SEES STALIN EXILE LOOMING

By ROBERT W. THOMPSON
Copyright, 1929, by International News Service.

Paris, Feb. 25—"Stalin pushed Trotzky out of Russia, but Stalin himself will find himself hurled from his high peak to a tragic end."

Thus Alexander Kerensky, former dictator of Russia, who now lives in exile here, predicted the present "master of Moscow" would suffer a sudden fall from power.

Kerensky declared Russia is rapidly evolving towards a Democratic-Bourgeoisie form of government which will take over a concrete form after Stalin loses his grip.

"Since Stalin has booted Trotzky out we will hear no more of him, Kerensky said. "Some may think this will benefit Russia but I think his exile will in no way change conditions, for Trotzky and Stalin are Siamese twins in political ideas.

"Stalin is obstinate and greedy for power. He has tremendous energy which is equalled only by Mussolini. His iron determination may keep him at the helm for a long time. He will not be supreme, but mark my word, he will lose.

"He owes his exile to persistent demands for more absolute dictatorial authority for the politburo, the nine members of which rule Soviet Russia. Stalin himself governs the politbureau. He is neither a commissioner for the people nor a president of any group, being merely an ordinary secretary for the central Communist party. He holds the dictatorship more easily by keeping out of governmental organizations."

2 Revere Officials Asked to Resign

The resignation of Bernard Berkowitz, Revere license commissioner, and of Mrs. Katherine B. Collins, a member of the Revere board of health, were demanded today by Mayor Andrew J. Casassa. Both officials were appointed by former Mayor John E. Walsh. Berkowitz demanded a public hearing. It was granted him and it will be held in the city council chamber Thursday.

Brockton Attorney to Defend Cullen

Brockton, Feb. 25—Atty. John B Mahar of this city has been retained by relatives to defend Christopher Cullen, under arrest in Plymouth jail on the charge of murdering his bride of five days.

Following a conference with his client, Atty. Mahar said today he would have no statement until after Cullen was examined by the State psychiatrist to be named tomorrow.

CUT TAXES ON WAGES, SAYS M'CORMACK

"Reduction of taxes by all public taxing institutions, particularly the federal government, is our biggest international problem," declared Congressman John W. McCormack of Boston today, when apprized of a movement, which the Hearst newspapers are supporting, to secure reduction in taxation on earned incomes.

"It can be accomplished in whole by a sane definition of what are intoxicating liquors, and in part by the federal government discontinuing federal aid to states," the Hub member of Congress asserted in a wire from Washington.

The movement for a tax cut on earned incomes has been started in various parts of the country among lawyers, doctors, journalists and people of similar callings and is based on the principle that earned incomes should not pay the same rate as permanent property and invested capital.

McCORMACK'S MESSAGE

Congressman McCormack's message in full follows:

I am in favor of making a substantial increase in amount of exemption of salary or income, from tax under federal laws which would result in absolving the small wage-earner. In addition to this I favor as soon as possible a reduction all along the line on all taxes.

I feel, however, that small wage earners who are affected most by present high cost of living should receive first consideration. In order to bring about reduction of taxes on salary income or profits there must either be a decrease in cost of government or some new source of revenue must be devised.

Taxes are ordinarily imposed to raise the difference between departmental income and cost of government. The cost of government is the basis of taxation. If Congress would stop appropriating money on so-called federal aid to states, taxes on small wage-earners could be practically abolished and consideration given to reduction on higher levels.

COST OF GOVERNMENT.

"Federal aid legislation is not only gradually destroying state government, but is rapidly increasing cost of running Federal Government. From 1910 to 1919 Federal Government received over $2,150,000,000 in taxes from a source which was wiped away by passage of the Volstead act.

"Every town, city, county and state was affected. In addition to large revenue destroyed, the cost of government had greatly increased in every city, county, state and particularly the Federal Government, as result of passage of the Volstead act.

"A sane definition of what is intoxicating beverage without return to saloon would reopen this large source of revenue and taxes on salary, income, profit or other sources would immediately decrease.

"This would have a corresponding decreasing effect on cost of living, also cost of government, and conditions in general would improve. It must be borne in mind that high taxes has a tendency to prevent capital being put into new enterprises because if they suffer losses, all loss is borne by them and if the make a profit Government takes most of it.

FOREIGN INVESTMENTS.

"This is making them invest money in foreign countries or in safe stocks and bonds where there is no risk. This is a contributing factor to present unemployment conditions.

"The reduction of taxes by all public taxing institutions, particularly the Federal Government, and manner in which it can be brought about is our biggest international problem today.

"The above are some suggestions as to how it can be accomplished in whole by a sane definition of what are intoxicating liquors, and in part by the Federal Government discontinuing federal aid to states. In any event, the small wage-earner should be considered first."

tion," he replied quickly. "It is being done too extravagantly, and must be done cheaper. Competition is responsible for this extravagance, advertising methods of making sales and other business practises are too complicated and expensive"

"In the saturation point nearing in the sales of automobiles in this country?"

AUTO NECESSITY NOW

"I do not believe so," he answered. "No one knows when it will be. People must have automobiles. They are no longer luxuries. They are a necessity. People are going in for duplication in cars. You simply cannot do anything without an automobile nowadays."

"Ambition and work are what make for success. I think any man with these qualities will succeed, the extent of his success depending upon how hard he strives and how much he is willing to sacrifice.

"If you make up your mind to accomplish something and if you keep your goal in mind and do not allow yourself to be deviated from it, you will succeed. Long time rules have ambition, but that is all. They won't make the sacrifices that they are often called upon to make. There is nothing you cannot accomplish if you work hard enough at it. You don't see much in the luck element."

DEATH BRINGS STARS NO TAX RELIEF

hardship upon her and her little daughter five years old.

With the many articles printed on the enormous salaries paid these screen players the public wonders why they are not able to save and provide for just such a contingency.

Simply because often there are long weeks when a motion picture star is out of work, and his salary must be spread out over this period of unemployment.

It have in mind the case of a well-known western film hero. During the days when he was at the height of his success he made big money, but he has finished on the screen and hasn't made a picture in years. Uncle Sam has lately taxed him more than 78 per cent of his worldly possessions.

He was desperate when the tax collector descended upon him because he didn't have the amount of money the government was demanding of him. What can he do? Whenever as a motion picture actor is over and he is no longer young. He was forced to pay the government money that was earned in previous years, when he was working every day.

So case after case of actors and actresses, who are harrassed to a point that resembles the Spanish Inquisition, have made the trials of the colonists and the French revolutionists seem tame by comparison.

The authorities at Washington are not trying to cruelly fleece film people, but the Government system of taxation is operated so unfairly as to amount to practically that.

These men and women who have contributed so generously to the happiness and entertainment of the world, who have donated so liberally to charity, and who have labored so patriotically in the service of the nation, are pilloried and made to suffer intensely and unjustly.

The very mention of a tax collector terrifies the aver ge motion picture actor who knows nothing about business. The Government has provided no way for him to get in touch with persons who can give him proper help. The tax laws are not clearly defined. There is no way of knowing who can prepare a tax return so that years later it won't come back.

No one of these people wants to break the law, and not one of them has any wish to incur the wrath of the Government.

In most cases the actor is only trying to play an investment and in equitable law, and to offer exemptions which he believes to be and which probably are legitimate.

NASH MOTORS GIVES HIGHER POSTS TO 2

Kenosha, Wis., F'. 25—Announcement has been made by the Nash Motors Company of the appointment of E. J. Travers as director of advertising and assistant sales manager, effective March 1.

C. H. Bliss, Nash sales manager, said: "Mr. Travers has been advertising manager of the Nash Motors Company practically since the formation of the company and this promotion is well merited by reason of his capable and loyal devotion to the interests of the company.

"In his conduct of the advertising department he has shown exceptional ability in co-ordinating the advertising to sales requirements and his service is familiar to him. Long identified as one of the most able advertising managers in the industry, he will enter more directly into Nash sales activity, but at the same time Nash advertising will continue to retain the benefit of his long experience, as he will also act as director of advertising.

"The post of advertising manager will be filled by F. R. Babcock, who has for more than ten years been an executive of the Green-Fulton-Cunningham Company advertising agency. During this period, Mr. Babcock has specialized upon Nash advertising and is familiar with Nash policies and practices. He is well known throughout the advertising business and among the newspaper men.

"With sales of the new '400' series breaking records, with large plant expansion well under way, the Nash Motors Company is also engaged in augmenting and strengthening its sales department to meet the increased responsibilities that accompany greater volume of business. Bringing Mr. Travers into sales work is in step with this movement of developing a broadened program of merchandising effort."

Dearest Anne:

What trick is the weather man playing on us—or is it just the capricious entrance of Lady Spring? Let's not encourage such pranks—but go on sublimely planning the serious business of our new Spring costumes. I know in a "canny" moment last season you stored away some of your favorite frocks for future wearing so just listen to this—

Parker Specials

How would you like to get your coat cleaned and pressed for just One Dollar? Or your dress suit or even ensemble? Well, just for this week and next Parker Bros (Shoe 309, 110 Tremont St.) offer to cleaned and press any of these garments for just $1.00. Besides this wonder full offer they have a few more of those extraordinar dresses reduced to $5 (you have no doubt heard about them) and also some brand new dresses just in from New York, marked special for this week at $8.75 instead of their regular price — $15. Here's a trio of bargains worth knowing about, and worth taking advantage of, Anne.

Varicose Veins

are dangerous—besides being painful and disfiguring—so if you have any friends who are suffering from them, Anne, tell them of the many, many people who have found comfort and relief in Dr. Sault's elastic stockings. They are seamless, almost invisible, flesh color, have knitted-in heel, and are priced $6.75 each. You may order by mail. Dr. Saul also has a most effective and cooling ointment for varicose veins, priced 65 cents. His fitted to measure arch support shoes come in all the newest styles and prices, only $8.50. For corn, calluses and other foot troubles, Dr. A. P. Saul, chiropodist, 110 Tremont st., room 312, is unexcelled.

A Gay Little Dancer

whose frocks I have always admired because of their unusual style first told me about the Metro Dress Shop in the Metropolitan Hotel. She says most of her friends buy their dresses there as their profession demands the latest, and they know that Jack Platt the shop buys his dresses direct from New York—and offers them at the lowest imaginable prices. They have a surprising array of the latest prints, georgettes and silk crepes in all the smartest colors at the surprising prices of $5.95, $7.95 and up. The Metro Dress Shop also carries a complete line of the finest grade silk stockings, underwear and costume jewelry, very appealingly priced.

I Do Hope

Julia is taking advantage of the extraordinary values in children's stockings which I have been telling you about in the Children's Hosiery Dept. of the Touraine Glove Co., Avon St. store. For only 15 cents I saw some actual 35 cent values in cotton stockings black, brown and white—really, exceptional values. Also for this same amazing price they have some very good-looking cotton plaid sport socks, with turn down cuff. Another unusual value for only 20 cents are the plaid cotton stockings and socks, in camel, blue and black. Really, Anne, thrifty mothers can cut their children's hosiery bill just about one-half at the Touraine.

"Briefly" Speaking, Anne,

your "undie" wardrobe simply must include them—those adorable short knickers called "Briefs" that have danced their way into high favor. You surely have been royally received by the well-dressed young miss whose smart but scanty skirts sometimes fail in their duty—and reveal a disconcerting glimpse of underwear—if the underwear is too lengthy. Filene's has settled this matter with their dainty briefs in tailored and lacy styles. Made of lovely soft glove silk, so durable and so easily laundered, they have a most slenderizing effect under a trim-fitting frock. They are full enough for comfort, but not the least bit bulky. The "lacy" style briefs are perfectly darling, and come in all the luscious pastel shades, with deep ecru lace inserta and tiny French bows, priced $3.50 The new tailored briefs of glove silk come in bold Candy Stripes if you please, of maize, rose and white with pert little bows, and are priced at $3.00. They also come in Sun-tan and black, which is extremely smart under a black silk frock. If you have a bride-to-be in your family, I know she would adore having a pair or two of these bonnie Briefs to tuck into her Treasure chest. You'll find them at Filene's Glove Silk Underwear Section, first floor.

It's the Last Part of Scott's Fur Coat Party

that extraordinary event which Scott's announced this year for the first time in their history—an event which has saved women of limited means hundreds of dollars. In the past Scott Furriers disposed of all their fur coats to dealers. This year, instead, they have selected the best ones, thoroughly renovated them until they look like new, and offer them at a fraction of their original cost. These samples, four models and slightly used fur coats, just out of Scott's Workshop, are offered at ridiculously low prices for final clearance, and range in price from $25 to $95. Among the coats in this sale are Hudson Seals (dyed Muskrat), Raccoons, Muskrats, Caracul, Ponies, Seal Dyed Conies, Mole, Broadtail, Leopard Cat, etc. The "party" is on Scott's, they want to sell the entire lot, so come and bring your friends. Another opportunity may never present itself again. Should it be inconvenient for you to pay cash, you may arrange for small weekly or monthly payments while wearing your coat, by joining Scott's Unique Fur Club—the only one in New England. This "Fur Coat Party" is taking place on the third floor of Scott's Building, 69 Summer St., and will continue until all the coats are sold. Scott's final clearance of their one and only markdown of dependable fur coats is going on on the second floor of their building.

A Thrifty Miss Is Nancy

for while her ideas soar loftily—her feet descend thriftily down the golden stairway to the $10 Dress Section of the Spanish Galleries of Chandler & Co. Nancy says she knows she always can get what she wants there without paying higher prices—because all the dresses for both women and misses are marked at the one price—$10. And you always find the newest in both style and colors. Right now this section is bubbling over with new Spring prints and high shades in silk crepes and georgettes. There are bubble prints, checks and polka dots, in cape style dresses, kerchiefs and ensemble effects. There are also some lovely flower printed georgettes in soft, dainty styles. In the new plain shades, in which green plays an important role, there are some stunning new styles whose snug-fitting hip lines are laced at one side with a cord. There are also some frocks with saucy bow trimmings, and some with amazing scarf treatments. There is plenty of navy blue, which the business girl welcomes back, and one new popular one-piece model that begins at the shoulder with fine pin tuckings, ends at the skirt in pleats. These frocks come in sizes 14 to 48.

Now Tell Me Truly

aren't you beginning to think of your perennial permanent—recalling the joy and well-groomed appearance your last one gave you? Wondering if it is time for another. If really isn't a bit too soon—and you'll save money if you get it now at Gilchrist Beauty Shop, where they are making a special Spring price of $5, including shampoo and setting wave. Juanita of your permanent really depends on the care you take of it—and Gilchrist's give wonderful finger waves for $1.25. They are also having some remarkable results with their Inecto Notox hairdye—known in over-the-counter treatment and interferes in no way with permanent waving.

Black Cats

loom importantly across the skyscrapers at Ye Iron Shoppe, 250 Boylston St., that charming shop of wrought iron gifts and novelties. And just in time for Spring flowers comes wrought iron wall brackets either swinging or stationary, priced $2 and up. The graceful colored flower pots are only 70 cents. They also have some new holders to contain groups of 2, 3, and 5 plants. You will really be quite carried away with their irresistible brass snuffers, iron horseshoe knockers and sconces, all very reasonably priced. They also have a complete assortment of real old ship lanterns in all sizes—that are sure to give a "salty" air to your doorway.

It's Time to Think about redecorating your home with those little accessories that mean so much towards cozy comfort. I found the dearest little shop that simply breathes charm and hospitality with its gorgeous array of lamps, end tables, coffee tables, desks and occasional furniture—the Home Beautiful Shop, 175 Harvard Ave., Allston. They are offering a special price of only $25 on a great comfy boudoir chairs, reversible cushions and covered in damask in lovely warmth-giving tones of orchid, green, rose and rust. A wonderful value. Also for the same price you may have the color scheme of your own bedroom carried out in the pipings of these chairs, made to order Sts. 3745.

Baby Carriages

will soon be on parade, Anne, with rosy, laughing wee ones peeking out from under the fluffy robes. I wish you'd tell Louise that if she is looking for the best values in reed carriages, English coaches or strollers—latest designs and most sturdy make—to visit the Boston Baby Carriage Mfg. Co., 802 Washington St., who offer their complete line at manufacturer's cut let prices. This store specializes in nursery furniture at the very lowest prices, and has a wonderful assortment of cribs, up to 7-year age, high chairs nursery chairs in the new, soft nursery shades, and a full line of toys.

Tricky Little Dresses

for tricky little misses in a tricky little shop of their own—the Sub-deb Shop of C. F. Hovey Co. (third floor). These important Junior Misses now revel to their heart's delight in a shop where their youthful demands for style are tempered with Dad's demand for economy. This Sub-deb Shop has the sprightliest array of evening frocks that ever paid through a "prom" and the gayest group of bubbles and checked prints that ever burst into a classroom. New coats to wrap around their smart young figures will surely wrap them selves around Dad's wallet, for they are stirring values for junior misses and older misses of smaller size. Sizes 13 to 17 at a price that will astonish you, Anne. Lovely pearls, softly glowing, have ever been Milady's favorite jewel. They soften harsh lines a how to your throat or glorify its beauty—a n d add a distinctive note to your frock, because of the tremendous demand for them of late, Jordan Marsh Company has made another special purchase of those dainty three-strand constructed pearl necklaces which they offer at only $1.00 each (in their street floor annex.) They are unusually well matched, and have as an outstanding feature the popular gold-wire filled clasp. They are truly amazing values at only $1.00.

Constructed Pearls

Newer Than New!

Almost before they are out you see the latest styles at Evelyn's Dress Shop, 3 Winter st. But small wonder, for Evelyn's dresses are such amazing values for style quality and price that they are quickly snatched up. I found her section at $13.95 and up glowing with sparkling prints, pin checks and polkas, in all colors—with the new Chartreuse predominating. Stunning black and blue silk crepe frocks with the new tri-colored trimmings—and of course—the ensemble! The georgette frock sketched costs but $9.50. If you are looking for a surprise—just drop over the $8.95 and $5 racks. They contain prints in unbelievable variety, combinations and plain colors.

Away With Drabness—

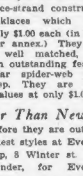
with dull, lustreless hair! Brighten your locks till they glisten and gleam as if touched with stardust—until they become truly your "crowning glory." How can this be done? Why, after your shampoo, simply dip your hair in Flozor—that magical bottled sunlight that brightens the most dreary, colorless hair and gives it warmth and beauty. Flozor is not a dye nor a bleach, but a brightener prepared by J. Lesquendien from the potent camomile blossoms (it can be used alike by both blondes and brunettes, and 'in-between" shades. It is sold exclusively by Meyer Jonasson Co., Toilet Goods Dept., priced $2.50



So you see, my Anne — all signs point to Spring—from home decorations to baby carriages—as sure a sign of fair weather as the first little boy playing marbles. So don't let this blanket of downy snow lessen your interest in bubble prints, because it is quite apt to vanish over night and leave you wishing "you had something new to wear."

Devotedly yours,

Priscilla

HEARST TEMPERANCE PLAN OFFER WINS PRAISE OF LEADERS

$25,000 PRIZE CONTEST IS CALLED AID TO NATION

Leading business men, executives of great corporations that have a vital interest in the problems involved, writers and professional folk in every realm of activity, continue to express pronounced opinions on prohibition, and to comment appreciatively on the search, by means of the Hearst $25,000 temperance prize contest, for a practical substitute for prohibition that will command the Nation's respect and obedience.

W. J. L. Bannan, of the Otis Elevator Company, who is president of the Board of Trade, New York, and active in civic affairs of the metropolis, was asked for his views on the prohibition problem. His prompt reply, from the viewpoint of a practical business man, was:

"Moral virtue cannot be instilled by the aid of the policeman's club. Prohibition and temperance have similar meanings only in the theorist vocabulary. To the pragmatist, who judges things by the sole standard of 'does it work,' the two words are at great variance.

GRAVE DOUBT

"There is but little quarrel on the subject of the harm to society caused by the consumption of highly alcoholic products for beverage purposes, but there is a grave and growing doubt of the potency of the prohibition amendment in obtaining the desired results.

"Viewed in retrospect, it would seem that prohibition laws were passed without the slightest knowledge of human nature. The prohibition law was designed to regulate things and not people, and right on that point it has fallen down.

"Today liquor is presumed to be scarce, hard to get, and expensive. There is the little edge of risk and daring. It has, therefore, been made the symbol of hospitality and in thousands of homes throughout the land, where formerly no liquor was kept, now there are well-stocked larders. Hospitable drinks are offered on frequent occasions.

"I do not propose to pass judgment on the effect of alcohol upon the flaming youth of today, nor upon that class of people whom Judge Lindsay describes as the 'roaring forties.' With their morals, their health and their financial standing I am not concerned. But it is an incontrovertible fact that many people are drinking quantities of hard liquor today who before the prohibition law was enacted were temperate in the extreme.

"I believe that Mr. Hearst and his chain of newspapers are rendering a valuable service to society in the present effort to get us started again along the right track. It is so many millions of people that we are concerned with, and not so many gallons of alcohol. I congratulate Mr. Hearst and his publications upon this splendid movement."

OPINIONS GIVEN

Other opinions on the temperance contest and the state of the nation under prohibition follow:

SOL. BLOOM, Representative to Congress from New York—Mr. Hearst's offer of a $25,000 prize for the best plan to achieve temperance is the best thing he has ever done. I cannot congratulate him too highly upon inaugurating this temperance prize contest. I have known Mr. Hearst for many years and never felt quite so enthusiastic about any of his plans as I do about this one.

There is no question that the American public is ready to receive the truth about prohibition. All that is necessary now is to have the proper vehicle by which the truth may be told and retold to the people. I believe that Mr. Hearst intends to do this.

WILLIAM C. DE MILLE, Noted Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer Director and Playwright, Los Angeles, Cal.—I think Mr. Hearst is doing a splendid thing in bringing the discussion of prohibition to a non-political and non-religious basis.

No law can really be enforced which has the active opposition of 40 to 50 per cent of the people, and is disregarded by a large portion of the remainder.

It is well to realize that the Constitution of the United States would not be attacked by removing the Eighteenth Amendment any more than it was attacked by its adoption; and that the Volstead act is not a part of the Constitution itself but a law which has been demonstrated to be unworkable and which should be amended in such manner that a citizen could give it support without feeling himself to be attacking those fundamental principles of personal liberty which first caused the Constitution of the United States to be written.

MRS. ALICE FOOTE MacDOUGALL, New York woman restaurateur, and coffee merchant—I am thoroughly in accord with Mr. Hearst's suggestion that some sane substitute be found for the condition of the country under the Eighteenth Amendment and the Volstead Act.

SEES HOPE

The most dangerous thing about the whole situation is that soon no one will be satisfied with light wines and beers. The party of prohibition days has taught us to take to cocktails and whiskey.

Hope lies in some modification of the Volstead Act. There seems to be no other solution, as the Constitution is drawn. In my own personal view there should be some sort of legislation to provide for the sale of alcoholic beverages under government supervision.

JOHN S. ROSE, Jr., Attorney, New York—Not 10 per cent of the people of this country are seriously interested in prohibition. Mr. Hearst is exactly right in declaring that prohibition disrupts temperance. I think his prize offer is a most excellent idea.

Temperance cannot come through prohibition. Temperance is a matter of intelligence, not of constraint. Drinking is a matter of conviviality, and you will never be able to do away with that spirit. There will be places for conviviality no matter how you may legislate.

If there are not some sort of licensed places, there will be unlicensed speakeasies. And such places are potential forces for crime. They have no influence for good.

The way to re-establish temperance is to get rid of hypocritical politicians who are easily influenced away from reflecting the minds of their constituents. Get in their places people who honestly understand humanity and the experiences by which humanity is governed.

INA DELMAR, Literary Guild authoress—I am not in favor of prohibition and doubt that any sane person actually is, in spite of what he or she may say for political or other reasons. How anyone could read last week's news, for instance, and believe that the Eighteenth Amendment has given us anything but the depth of criminal depravity is beyond me. The sanguinary massacre in Chicago was directly traceable to prohibition.

LAW FLOUTED

Many greater and lesser crimes can be laid at its door. And have we gained anything by the amendment or the Volstead Act? Is liquor any scarcer? The use of it is far more widespread, only the stuff consumed is now of an inferior grade and more expensive.

Prohibition made America peevish. The law is flouted for the mere fun of flouting it. Most people have bought liquor at some time or other since July 1, 1919, and have derived a surreptitious satisfaction from knowing where to get it.

Anybody who knows me knows that I don't drink. I don't care for liquor of any description, so my objection to prohibition is a thoroughly impersonal thing. I merely regard it as a ridiculous, unjust imposition upon the nation.

Some modification of the present law must be found to end crime and corruption and to satisfy citizens who feel that they have been unfairly deprived of moral and even legal rights.

Mr. Hearst is deserving of great appreciation for his offer of $25,000 for a prize solution. May power to the temperance contest.

FRANK S. DELAND, Corporation Counsel of City of Boston—Under the conditions which exist today because of the Eighteenth Amendment the whole structure of our society is disorganized; it is in a chaotic condition.

We certainly need some solution of a problem which has so disrupted conditions that the people are picking their legislators, not for their ability or skill, but because of their views on prohibition solely.

LAUD PLAN

Mr. Hearst is doing a great thing by bringing about public discussion of the subject; for, after all, the solution rests with the people

JAMES F. MEAGHER, attorney—I have been reading with interest the comments and endorsements of Mr. Hearst's $25,000 prize award for the best and most practical substitute prohibition plan, and I must say that I heartily am in accord with the contained principles of the plan.

Everyone must agree that prohibition is a great question and one of the country's great problems. Any plan which gives the people of the country an opportunity to express themselves more fully on a topic which has been controversial for the past ten years, is deserving of the warmest praise. And any man who affords this opportunity is equally as deserving of commendation and praise.

RAEL RUBY, Attorney and Boston City Councilor—I believe Mr. Hearst is to be highly commended for stimulating the thinking minds of the country to the need of some action on the great question of prohibition, which question has gripped all sections of the country.

That the problem is as yet unsolved we must all agree. I look with keen anticipation and high hope to the day when some solution will be brought about by the generous award offered by this public-spirited a man as Mr. Hearst.

Here Are Rules in Hearst Temperance Contest

THE purpose of the contest is to obtain a practical plan as a substitute for prohibition which will secure better actual temperance conditions which will be more easily possible of enforcement by State and federal authorities which will offer less encouragement to crime and tend less to debauch the public service and which will not so outrage and violate the fundamental rights and personal liberties of American citizens.

The rules and conditions of the contest are simple and are as follows:

1—Every person is entitled to enter the contest, but no one person may submit more than one plan.

2—The practicable plan proposed as a substitute for prohibition must be set forth in an article containing not more than one thousand words.

3—This contest will close on April 30, 1929, and no plan which has not been mailed and postmarked on or before that date will be considered.

4—The articles submitted in the contest will be judged by a committee of eminent Americans, the personnel of the committee to be announced at a later date.

5—The full prize of $25,000 will be awarded to the contestant submitting the best plan as a practicable temperance substitute for prohibition.

6—If other plans not awarded the first prize shall still be considered worthy of some compensation by the committee, a second prize of $5,000 and other prizes of $1,000 each may be awarded.

7—Articles submitting a plan to be considered in this contest may be sent to the Temperance Contest Committee, care of the editor of any one of the following Hearst newspapers: Albany Times-Union, Atlanta Georgian Baltimore News, Boston Evening American, Chicago Herald and Examiner, Detroit Times, Los Angeles Examiner, New York American, Omaha Bee-News, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, Rochester Journal, San Antonio Light, San Francisco Examiner, Syracuse Journal, Seattle Post-Intelligencer, Washington Herald, Wisconsin News (Milwaukee).

(If you have no objection to publication of your plan, please write "May print" in upper left hand corner of first page.)

K. C. WHISTS TO BE RESUMED

Following the decision of Judge Charles H. Carr that their weekly whist parties were not illegal, officers of St. James' Council, Knights of Columbus, will hold another party tonight in Robert Burns Hall, Berkeley and Appleton sts.

The parties have been suspended pending the decision on the issuance of a warrant asked by the police of Station 5.

The council has been holding these parties weekly for more than eight years. The proceeds have been devoted entirely to the Catholic foreign missions in China and the Orient.

Councilor Pittsfield, Brockton and Worcester adopted the plan and substantial sums have been realized.

The aim of St. James' Council is to have this idea spread to the 2500 councils in the United States so that the missions may have a steady source of income.

The committee which has been in charge for eight years includes William A. H. Crowley, chairman; Michael J. Walsh, John F. Doherty, Hugh T. Cassidy, Patrick J. Walsh and Cornelius Sullivan.

BEWARE THE COUGH FROM COLDS THAT HANG ON

Coughs from colds may lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for coughs from colds and bronchial irritations. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of coughs from colds, bronchitis and minor forms of bronchial irritations, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)

CONCERTS, EXHIBITIONS AND LECTURES ENGAGE SOCIETY'S PRESENT INTEREST

Robert Nathan Cram Gives Talk on American Gardens at the College Club Today

THIS WEEK SOCIETY DEVOTES ITSELF CHIEFLY TO CONCERTS, exhibitions and lectures. Mr. Robert Nathan Cram's lecture on American Gardens at the College Club this afternoon is a promising beginning for such an intellectual week. Tomorrow a view of watercolors by American and European artists will be held at the Museum of Fine Arts in the afternoon, while in the evening the Harvard Glee Club will give a concert in Saunders Hall under the direction of Mrs. Charles Peabody of Cambridge. Wednesday evening Heinrich Gebhard, assisted by Miss Elizabeth Perkins, will be heard in a musicale, also at the Museum, to benefit the school library, and on Friday evening is the Myra Hess concert at Jordan Hall, sponsored by an impressive list of patronesses.

BUT MUSIC LOVERS AND THE DEVOTEES OF ART WILL find time to attend tomorrow's fashion fete at the home of Mrs. Pierpont L. Stackpole on Commonwealth ave., and to prepare for the next to last Senior Supper Dance which takes place at the Copley-Plaza on Friday evening. Miss Katharine Cunningham Gray's debut as a concert singer was an undoubted triumph, according to those who were present at her song recital at the Women's Republican Club last night. Miss Gray, who was accompanied by Mr. Richard Malaby, sang four groups of songs, one old Italian, one modern French, one modern Italian and one English. The last group, which met with special approval, included The Grocer's Boy, a light and very charming piece of melody composed by her accompanist, and three songs by George Gersh-win. Miss Gray's voice is a mezzo soprano of great natural beauty to which she did full justice.

ON FRIDAY MORNING A MEETING OF THE MASSACHUSETTS GARDEN CLUB will be held at the home of Mrs. Edwin S. Webster on Dartmouth st. The meeting is in preparation for the flower show which opens on March 19 at Mechanics Hall under the auspices of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society. Mrs. Edward Wigglesworth of Chestnut st., is chairman of committee in charge. Serving actively with her are Mrs. Robert C. Morse, vice-chairman, Mrs. J. W. Farley, Mrs. Walter Bunnewell, Mrs. F. L. W. Richardson and Mrs. Edwin S. Webster. The plans for the show this year are more elaborate than ever. New ideas in table and mantel decorations will be carried out as well as garden plans. On March 19, the opening day, Miss Evelyn Sturgis, Mrs. Arthur W. Elwell and Mrs. J. W. Farley will be hostesses at a luncheon in honor of garden club leaders from other cities.

THE ENERGETIC COMMITTEE IN CHARGE OF THE CONCERT to be given at the Boston Garden on the evening of Wednesday, April 3 by the symphonic band of the Royal Belgian Guards are already making extensive preparations for the sale of tickets. Mrs. Edward C. Wheeler, Jr., of 54 Chestnut st., is in charge of the ticket sale, and advance applications by mail may be sent to her. Mrs. Francis I. Amory of Beacon st. is chairman of the subcommittee on patronesses, while Mrs. Dunbar Lockwood is in charge of the advertising. Among the active members of Mrs. Lockwood's committee are Mrs. Thomas B. Gannett, Mrs. Samuel D. Warren, Mrs. Samuel Eliot and Mrs. Richard M. Russell. The proceeds of the concert are to go to the Boston Lying-in and Infants' Hospitals.

AMONG THE YOUNGER SET DESERTING BOSTON FOR BERMUDA, are Miss Dorothy Lawrence, Miss Betty Soule, Miss Helen Streeter, who is staying with her father, Dr. Edward C. Streeter, at the Princess; Miss Margaret Blake, who is also at the Princess with Mrs. Henry Guild of Brookline, and Miss Deborah Sayles, who is with her father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Sayles of Hammond st., Chestnut Hill. Mrs. James J. Storrow is at the Mid-Ocean Club in Hamilton.

MISS JULIET GREENE, WHO HAS BEEN ACTIVELY INTERESTED for several years in the work of the Ellis Memorial, will be in charge of the ushers at the Denishawn dance recital at the Opera House on the evening of March 8 for the benefit of the Ellis Memorial. The group will wear black, sleeveless dresses, brightened by crimson ribbons. Among the girls who have volunteered to assist are Evelyn Cummings, Alice de V. Ware, Stella Gray, Margaret Sims, Rosamond Musgrave, Nancy Olney, Eugenia Frothingham, Katherine Adams, Barbara Forbes, Caroline Saltonstall, Elizabeth Palfrey, Adelaide Sims and Agnes Beardman.

How Women Bought New Clubhouse

"YOU women must be crazy to think you can build an $80,000 fireproof clubhouse on nothing but enthusiasm."

That's what some "hard-headed business men" of Hyde Park told the building committee of the Hyde Park Current Events Club in 1925 when it asked advice.

Today these same men swell with pride when they hold their Board of Trade meetings in that dream of concrete and lumber conceived by "them women that don't know anything about finance."

Many of them cannot yet understand how the clubwomen swung this proposition and so the president, Mrs. Arthur Russell, had a quiet chuckle with the Club Institute when she explained it recently.

"We bought the land perhaps 15 years ago but the actual building did not begin until six years ago, when we formed a corporation to build a clubhouse which would serve as a community center," she said. "But the corporation were broke with the walls of the building standing and no roof over them. It looked as if we had bitten off more than we could chew—but we dissolved the building corporation and reincorporated as a club with 400 membership.

"That was a difference when it came to securing a $30,000 mortgage and a note for $5000 for immediate work. This we did in the spring of 1925. By the next October I we held our first meetings in the new clubhouse. We sought advice from many leading citizens and business men and f w of them thought we could swing that mortgage. Most of them thought we were crazy.

WORTHWHILE WORK

"But we give credit to Mr. C. L. Alden, who has been a real friend, ready to back us in every way. His advice has been invaluable when we had to go up against Boston building laws and other things we knew nothing about.

"Our problem soon became one of keeping the club from becoming nothing but a money-making drudge, meeting annual budgets. We wanted it to do worthwhile community work and so we contributed to several causes during the past year, notably to the Vermont Flood Relief, Red Cross, Family Welfare, district nurses and community welfare—in all $700 was disbursed for philanthropy this year besides meeting our interest and paying off the note. The last $300 on that is now in sight through a chain of luncheons which will bring in $500 before April 1."

This chain is made by dividing the members into 25 teams with a captain for each. Each of the team invites eight other members whom she does not know well to her home for a luncheon at 50 cents each. Each of the eight in turn invits four others they don't know so well and thus a chain of new friendships grow up while the money part stays in the background.

ENTERTAIN PUPILS

A series of planned activities to raise money during the club year includes monthly card parties, food sales, bazaars and entertainments. The New Year Eve cabaret held in the clubhouse brought a large audience of local young people who had a delightful evening under safe and sane conditions.

The programs throughout the year have featured good speakers on live topics, and tw evenings have been given over to the community. The high school pupils were invited to give one program and in turn the club is having Grace M. Poole give her famous "Current Events" talk to seniors on March 27.

This is just another example of "he can who thinks he can."

CLUBWOMAN AT KEITH-ALBEE

Miss Dolly Morrow, member of the Professional Woman's Club, the Starr Club of Lynn and of the North Shore Club, is to present her Music Makers from the stage of the Keith-Albee Theater in Boston all this week. This unique organization of 14 men soloists is the only one of its kind in New England. It is directed by Miss Morrow, who is also a radio artist.

DORCHESTER WOMAN'S CLUB

Chief Tuss Mekin Yellow Feather, last survivor of the Wampanoag Indians, now living in Rhode Island, will tell of the life, customs, religion and present status of his people at the clubhouse at 2 p. m. "Wenona," an Indian girl, will sing Indian songs, accompanied by Miss Irene Williams.

Miss Mary Driscoll, chairman of the Boston Better Homes Association, will speak on better homes in America. Miss Mary Chase, education chairman, has charge of the program. Mrs. Flora Tarbell will be tea hostess and Mrs. Ellen G. Arringdale in charge of the food sale following.

WEST ROXBURY WOMAN'S CLUB

Dr. William A. Bryan will lecture on "Why Worry?" after the current events, business meeting and assembly singing, led by Mrs Mabel Barstow, State Federation song leader. Meeting opens at Highland Hall at 1:45 p. m.

JAMAICA PLAIN TUESDAY CLUB

Mrs. Grace Morrison Poole will speak on "History in the Making" at Unitarian Parish House, at 3 p. m.

BROCKTON WOMAN'S CLUB

ALBERT SPALDING GREETED BY ENTHUSIASTIC AUDIENCE

By MOSES SMITH

Albert Spalding gave a concert in Symphony Hall before a larger audience than has ever before greeted him in this city. To most of the people in that audience it may have seemed just "one more concert," though it was apparent that the violinist was definitely scoring.

But to the writer it seemed the beginning of an era in Spalding's artistic life. For 20 years he has made the round of concert halls, maturing from a quasi-prodigy to an artist of tremendous stature. We have applauded him before: so have many of his audiences. But by the token of yesterday's concert, America has in Spalding one of the chosen few violinists of today.

The artistry of Spalding was shown to best advantage in the Beethoven "Kreutzer" Sonata in a memorable performance, a finer performance than we can remember from any violinst we have heard—and this includes such men as Heifetz and Kreisler. Nowhere was Spalding's superb musician ship shown better than in his constant regard for the important piano part, his refusal to make of the piece simply one more solo. And he was exceedingly fortunate in his pianist, Andre Benoist, who rose to the greatness of the performance of his chief.

The violinist's tone was purity itself, both in the Sonata and in the shorter pieces that made up the program. He had a style to match whatever composition he was playing. The Ravel "Tzigane" was perhaps over-stylized, and in general Spalding had not the ingratiating quality to quite "put over" some musical trifle. But the "Kreutzer" was enough for us.

In marked contrast to this performance was that of Duci de Kerekjarto, who played violin pi e s in Jordan Hall before an exceedingly cordial audience. This Hungarian violinist, an early product of Hubay, seemed an overgrown prodigy in his rendition of a program beginning with Corelli's "La Folia," including Mozart's A major Concerto, and containing two groups of shorter pieces.

Kerekjarto, like Spalding, had technical equipment to burn, but, unlike the American, the Hungarian seemed content to "burn it. There appeared no musical bottom whatever to the performance of the Concerto, no understanding of Mozart's purport. On the other hand, Paganini's "Witches Dance and a couple of show-pieces by Sarasate were done with astonishing bravura, with kaleidoscopic brilliancy. And the violinist's own "Child's Dream" was repeated after insistent applause.

Romance of Prince and Greta Wrecked

Berlin, Feb. 25 (INS)—The romance linking the hearts of Prince Eduard, 22-year-old son of Crown Prince Gustav of Sweden, and Greta Garbo, beautiful Swedish film star, has collapsed under the opposition of the Swedish royal family, according to information from Stockholm. The prince has been ordered to curtail his social activities. Miss Garbo is understood to be in seclusion and expects to return to the United States soon

Quick relief for COLDS since 1889

Good for headaches as well as colds

Dad has taken care of his colds for more than 35 years with GROVE'S BROMO QUININE; but it took his modern daughter, Alice, just a week to find out two new uses he hadn't ever thought of.

The qualities which make these pleasant tablets a powerful weapon in beating colds, make them: 1, amazingly effective against trying headaches; 2, quick—though gentle—in relieving constipation.

That is why so many thousands are never without the handy white box. It is small enough to fit vest-pocket or purse. Its cost is less than the price of two sodas. Yet the 20 tablets are more than sufficient for 10 complete treatments.

Easy to take, GROVE'S BROMO QUININE regularizes and tones the entire system. The benefits are quickly apparent. Resistance is definitely built up, and Nature is given aid in avoiding and throwing off colds. Headache, feverish condition, sluggish bowels, stopped-up head, and nasty colds; all yield with surprising speed.... For your own sake, remember that there is only one Bromo Quinine. So emphasize GROVE'S, when asking for GROVE'S BROMO QUININE. Price 30c.

EIGHT NEW QUESTIONS IN GREAT PATRIOTIC FLAG CONTEST

EDUCATIONAL OFFER HAILED AS THOUSANDS ENROLL

A TRIP around the world—worth trying for, isn't it?

Two weeks' tour of the patriotic shrines in America, starting from Washington, "the heart of the nation." That's something.

Scholarships amounting to $200.

Medals of honor, honorable mention and testimonials, as well.

And this important feature, that there is time for every school boy and school girl to enter the nation-wide patriotic Flag Contest now being conducted by the United States Flag Association.

But why wait? Why not enroll at once? Have your school or local organization get busy. Hustle them along!

YOU may be the winner of these amazing awards which have never before been granted in any contest.

The Flag Contest Editor announces again that there is time to join with the thousands of school boys and school girls throughout New England in this great contest. The State officials of the American Legion are vitally interested in the movement and have recommended active participation by every legionnaire in Massachusetts.

Therefore, to every boy and girl here is an opportunity to become enrolled in the contest through their local American Legion post. This is true of the American Legion throughout the New England States.

ENROLL NOW

Patriotic associations and other organizations have indorsed the Flag Contest. So it's up to YOU to seize the opportunity thus offered by the local organization, to call upon them and ask them to enroll YOU in their contest unit.

If there is no such local organization actively engaged in conducting a contest unit, you have permission of the Flag Contest Editor to obtain, if possible, the services of public spirited and patriotic leaders in your localities to organize local flag boards. They have the same power as any school or organization. This should not be hard when you explain to them the educational and patriotic value of the contest and the wonderful awards offered to the winners.

Contestants are required to participate in this contest through the medium of the local contest unit. Any school official or head of a civic or patriotic group, or any responsible adult individual, will be granted authority to organize one of the local units, upon application to the Flag Contest Editor of the Boston Evening American.

A full set of the necessary printed matter, forms, information, etc., will be sent free of cost to any one wishing to undertake these local contests.

THREE THINGS

Any person or organization sponsoring a local contest will have only three things to do:

1—Obtain the contestants.

2—Appoint a jury of award to mark the papers of the contestants and determine the awards.

3—Arrange for public recitation of the essays which accompany the answers to the 75 questions which are a part of the contest, and arrange for the presentations of the awards.

For the contestants themselves they have only to answer 75 questions relating to the history and glory of the American Flag and the institutions for which it stands, and to write the brief accompanying essay on the subject of "Old Glory's Greatest Glory." The answers and essays go to a local committee of judges selected by the person sponsoring the local contest.

The best of the offerings will be sent to the Flag Contest Editor for submission to the regional board of awards. It is this board which will select the regional champions—one boy and one girl from each of the eighteen regions into which the country has been divided.

From this group of thirty-six will subsequently be chosen the national champions—two boys and two girls. And the thirty-six regional champions will be taken on the two weeks' tour of patriotic shrines of the United States.

The three boys and three girls from each of the eighteen regions making the first, second and third highest marks will get $200 scholarships in any institution of learning which they may select.

WILLIAM H. GRIFFIN, Department Commander, says: "The American Legion has ever been vitally interested in any movement which has for its primary purpose the advancement of patriotic ideals and principals, and so, as commander of the American Legion of Massachusetts, I am happy to indorse this very fine project. One of the main objectives of our organization, as set forth in the preamble of our constitution, is 'to foster and perpetuate a one hundred per cent Americanism.' It is on that basis I have recommended active participation by every Legionnaire in our Commonwealth.

NEW QUESTIONS

The Boston Evening American, regional sponsoring newspaper, today prints a new set of eight questions, which makes the total questions to date 38.

This fact should not alarm the schoolboys or schoolgirls who have enrolled as contestants; neither should it cause any uneasiness to the youths who have not as yet joined a contest unit.

On Wednesday and Friday of this week two other sets will be published—eight questions on Wednesday, and nine questions on Friday, which will complete the 75 questions.

A reprint of the entire 75 questions will be made in next Sunday's Boston Sunday Advertiser. So if you should have missed any set of the 75 questions, you still have an opportunity of obtaining a complete list of questions, not only next Sunday, but thereafter, or until the date set for the organization of local contest units closes.

In tomorrow's Boston Evening American will be printed a list showing the local contest units outside of schools now in process of formation, where boys and girls who have not as yet enrolled with their respective schools may do so with these local contest units.

There is nothing hard or complicated for those individuals who wish to organize Local Flag Boards.

The Flag Contest Editor furnishes those interested with everything available for the conduct of a local contest unit.

Today's Flagism

The sixteenth amendment to the Constitution of the United States was adopted on this date in 1913. The amendment reads: "The Congress shall have power to lay and collect taxes on incomes, from whatever source derived, without apportionment among the several States and without regard to any census or enumerations." The Constitution has by gradual changes and expansions kept apace with the new ideals and needs of the nation, much the same as Old Glory has expanded and gone forward.

DENNIS H. HAVERTY, Department Adjutant, says—"The conducting of this contest by the United States Flag Association merits the approval and co-operation of all Legionnaires and the public in general. I cannot commend it highly enough and consider it an honor to be asked to assist you."

JERE J. TWOMEY, Chairman, Department Americanism committee, says—"To aid in such a contest is the patriotic duty of every American interested in perpetuating the history and the symbolism of the Flag of the United States of America. Our reverence for Old Glory should be no less than that exemplified by Washington, the first President of the republic for which it stands."

SEAT RUSH FOR REPRODUCTION OF INAUGURAL

the screen at the Boston Garden in a matter of mere minutes after their taking.

Details of the elaborate musical and vaudeville program in preparation will be announced in the Boston Evening American later in the week. The pick of popular entertainers will be on the platform at various times through the three-hour show.

Remember, admission will be by ticket only, but tickets are free upon application by individuals and organizations. Don't forget to enclose addressed stamped envelope.

Hoover Still at Work on Inaugural Speech

Washington, Feb. 25—President-elect Hoover faces the last week before entering the White House with a goodly portion of his pre-inauguration labors still before him.

Despite the fact that March 4 is just around the corner, there is every indication that two, and perhaps three, places in his cabinet are as yet unsettled. His inaugural address remains unfinished. One draft has been completed, but many corrections and additions, in accordance with his usual custom, will be made before the speech reaches the public printer in its final form.

Hardly a hint has been dropped concerning his intended diplomatic appointments, and surface conditions at least point to several of the probability that his mind will be open to several of these appointments even to the more important European posts until the last minute.

Formal announcement of the membership of his cabinet is expected to be withheld until inauguration day itself.

Another heavy schedule of conferences with Congressional and party leaders has been arranged for the forthcoming week. His visitors tomorrow will include Speaker Nicholas Longworth, of the House, who will be a luncheon guest, and Rep. William M. Morgan of Ohio.

Representative John Q. Tilson, Republican floor leader of the House, said today he will call upon Hoover later in the week to inform him that Wednesday, April 10, appears to be the best date for convening the proposed extra session of Congress.

By opening hearings some time in March, it is believed the House agricultural committee can have a farm bill ready by that time.

Outstanding among the President-elect's callers was Henry M. Robinson, of Los Angeles, who has been consistently mentioned for a cabinet post in the next administration. Robinson conferred with Hoover twice last week.

IRISH SOCIETY LEADERS HERE ON S. S. CEDRIC

Miss Edith Somerville of Skibbereen, County Cork, Ireland, writer, artist and horsewoman, was among those aboard the White Star liner Cedric when the vessel docked at Commonwealth pier, South Boston, today, from Liverpool and Queenstown.

She was accompanied by her sister, Lady Hildegarde Coghill, of Castle Townshend, Glen Barrahane, County Cork, Irish society woman.

Miss Somerville plans to visit many of the large cities of this country and Canada during the next three months. While here she will visit Mrs. Thomas Hitchcock, mother of the polo star, at her home in South Carolina, and during her stay there will arrange an exhibition of some of her oil paintings of Irish scenery and sporting sketches. Lady Coghill will visit Washington, D. C., and other American cities.

H. Franklin Barrus, his wife, and their sons, Lawrence S. Barrus and H. Franklin Carrus, Jr., of Harvard pl., Brighton, returned aboard the Cedric for the first visit to their home here in four years. Barrus is a mechanical engineer and is now engaged in business in Wimbledon, England, near London.

Others aboard the vessel were Miss Margaret M. Fee of New York who comes here to visit relatives in Newton after a seven months tour of Ireland; G. Ward Price, noted English journalist who comes here as a representative of the London Daily Mail, and Captain D. C. Shaw, English seafarer who is bound for Philadelphia to take command of the steamer Korean Prince.

PRISON BREAKS HOPPE'S NERVE IN SOLITARY

The iron nerve of Stephen Hoppe, famous jail breaker, who is serving a life term at state prison for the murder of a Quincy policeman, has broken under severe discipline, and he has asked that he be restored to the status of other prisoners, it was learned today.

Isolated in a cell for the past three months in the arch section on the upper tier of the west wing of the prison, Hoppe has only himself for company. It is understood that prison officials will make no change in Hoppe's routine.

MONEY GOES UP AND STOCKS GO DOWN

By W. S. COUSINS

New York, Feb. 25 (INS)—A wave of speculative buying carried prices of the industrial favorites from 2 to 10 points higher in the early trading today, but profit-taking and professional selling under the leadership of the money market promptly wiped out the best part of the advance; the market was again in full control of the professionals who bid up stocks at the start, but "unloaded" with haste whenever profit-taking opportunities were presented.

United States Steel c tinued its spectacular bullish leadership of the industrials, with a new 6½-point advance to 188¾, a net gain of 2½ points from last week's low. Buying orders for 30,000 shares of "big steel" had accumulated over the three-day holiday and the stock was carried 3 points beyond its opening at 185 before the demands of the traders slightly lightened. With n an hour or so selling orders flowed int the market, and the advance was abruptly halted.

In the final hour prices stiffened

GASOLINE TAX OFFSET BY REDUCTION

By FRANK H. MELOON
Financial Editor

The Bay State's latest "road toll," the gasoline tax, may turn out to be less of a burden for 1929 than expected. Cuts in gasoline prices in different sections of the country, bringing them below the level prevailing at this time last year, have just about offset the two-cents-a-gallon tax imposed in Massachusetts.

State Tax Commissioner Henry F. Long estimates the January Massachusetts gasoline tax total at a half million dollars. The monthly amount will naturally run considerably larger in the periods of real motoring weather.

• • •

Although big railroad merger plans are still being discussed, stock market enthusiasm in State Street is dampened to a degree by the obvious fact that consummation will take a good deal of time. The initial steps toward a major railroad merger were taken about fifteen years ago and that merger is still up in the air. And no other big welding of carriers has since taken place.

I have just received the announcement that President Paul Shoup of the Southern Pacific will strenuously battle the proposal to link the Western Pacific and the Great Northern Railroads, for the joining of which applications were recently made to the Interstate Commerce Commission.

The two merger plans just put forward by President Daniel Willard, able Vermonter at the helm of the Baltimore & Ohio, and by the Van Sweringen brothers, ruling the Chesapeake & Ohio, are indeed gigantic. They would consolidate over 28,000 miles of tracks, which would cover the distance between Boston and San Francisco about eight times. The total capital investment represented would be $4,700,000,000, a sum larger than the total of all the gold and bullion in the United States, which in turn is equal to about half the entire stock of gold and bullion in the entire world. More than a fifth of the entire American carrier capital is in the two proposed mergers.

While representatives of New England industries and corporations are making tariff pleas at Washington and while the ways and means committee is considering the administrative features of the tariff law, a "lest we forget" quotation is timely. A local leader calls our attention to President-elect Hoover's views as expressed in his Boston speech on October 15, 1928: The Tariff Commission is a most valuable arm of the government. It can be strengthened and made more useful in several ways. But the American people will never consent to delegating authority over the tariff to any commission, whether nonpartisan or bipartisan. Our people have a right to express themselves at the ballot upon so vital a question as this. There is only one commission to which the delegation of that authority can be made. That is the great commission of their own choosing, the Congress of the United States and the President. It is the only commission which can be held responsible to the electorate."

New Hampshire's State Senate has just passed a bill, which has gone to the House, making it illegal to transport poultry between 9 p. m. and 5 a. m. without a special permit from the State Agricultural Department. The movement is directed against poultry stealing, which is of more importance in the modern business world than many people realize.

Now that the big poultry farms boast thousands of valuable fowls and chickens, they offer a rich lure to thieves. These thieves operate on a scale bigger than that of bank robbers in the old days. The modern moving truck is employed, of course, but we think it is not widely known that the poultry thieves of the present day use poison gases to overcome the poultry. The poison gases prevent the fowl from giving an alarm.

One New Hampshire poultry farmer told the writer that he lost several hundred fowl by the poison gas operators, the thieves cutting their entry through the side of the hen house because they feared the doors were fixed with alarm wires. First they killed a dog on watch outside. The farmer then put dogs inside the house, and the poultry thieves came again and quieted both fowl and dogs with poison gas.

Rural police forces, commonly underpaid and undermanned, can hardly be expected to cope well with thieves of this type, working for stakes running into the thousands of dollars. The new Granite State plan stands out a bright spot in the midst of a lot of senseless 1929 lawmaking.

London dispatches quote an F. A. Williams, who furnishes evidence to show that fishes think. One would like to find evidence that the modernized "Sacred Cod" in the State House on Beacon Hill can think. If he could think, he might do a little thinking about changing the Bay State laws to permit the capitalization of big Bay State corporations in Massachusetts instead of having them driven to other states. This ousting of our major corporations not only sends the tax money out of the Commonwealth, but also forces our residents to pay higher taxes than would otherwise have to be levied.

The domestic help problem is solved by taking a kitchenette apartment and the best are advertised daily in the For Rent columns.

Land Dotted by Branches; What Future Will Bring

By B. C. FORBES

NEW YORK, Feb. 25—One American company, Continental Can, since the beginning of last year has acquired 10 additional plants, located at different points on the Pacific Coast, in the South, in the Middle West and in the East. Its president, Charles C. Gushing, tells me that his action is typical of what he believes will prove an increasingly popular way of solving that paramount problem, the high cost of distribution.

B. C. Forbes

Is he right?

"Twenty-five years ago," explained Mr. Cowan, "capitalists bought up the chief plants in industry after industry with the sole purpose of establishing monopolies. Monopolies then became regarded as the one supreme goal, the one royal road to enormous profits. Industry is now more enlightened. Its goal today seldom is monopoly. It seeks, rather, to render the public the greatest possible service in the most efficient way at the least possible cost.

"By acquiring or establishing factories at all the most strategic points on the continent, we will be able, just as other manufacturers who do the same thing are able, to shorten delivery hauls and thus to reduce the cost of distribution."

Unquestionably this economic evolution is actively under way. General Motors, Ford, Chrysler, Willys and other leading automobile manufacturers are dotting the country with branch factories or assembly plants. The nation's foremost mail order houses are opening branches in many cities. The electrical industry is acting on the same principle.

In fact, in every well-located city throughout the land you now find branch establishments of nationally known enterprises.

Is not this one more reason for expecting the trend in industry and business towards bigness to continue? Is not this going to make it harder and harder for small or moderate concerns, doing only a small business, to exist? Is not this whole movement analogous to the rapid development of chain stores of every conceivable description?

If transportation by land is costly, Industry is probably busy goods find this cost a severe handicap in serving territories distant from manufacturing plants. In fact not entirely logical, therefore, that, wherever feasible, plants will be set up at points from which important markets can be served conveniently and economically?

The claim is made that such a plan of doing business permits of engaging the very best brains at headquarters and gives each plant and each distributing office the benefit of their best brains at very little cost per establishment. And is it not obvious that a concern doing $25,000,000 to $500,000,000 of business a year can afford to pay salaries entirely beyond merely local emoluments?

This whole situation is of interest not only to business men, but should be brought to the attention of and given careful consideration by young men facing the duty of choosing their life work. It used to be the ambition of most ambitious young men to set up on their objective the launching of a business of their own. That objective is rapidly becoming less and less practicable in many lines.

The youth leaving school or college should do well to take cognizance of the actualities of today and the probabilities of tomorrow. He should strive to reason out whether it would be likely to pay him in the end to attach himself to a large enterprise, with a view to striving to climb to an executive position, or to enter a line of activity in which he might reasonably hope to branch out on his own account by and by. There still are, of course, quite a number of lines in which it requires relatively little capital to hang out one's own shingle.

The foregoing gives some inkling of the economic trend. It is for each of us to ponder how to adapt our activities in harmony with it rather than blindly attempt to swim against the current.

GOOD SAFETY RECORD IS SET BY CAR LINES

One passenger out of every 133,000,000 carried by the electric railways of the United States in 1927 was fatally injured, the Electric Railroads Association reports.

Accident prevention work has made tremendous strides in the industry during the past few years. So great is interest in this highly important work that an international accident prevention movement has been started.

Electric railway companies in this country make no secret of the fact that they are actuated by financial, as well as humanitarian motives in joining this movement.

In addition to the suffering caused injured persons, the actual cost of accidents on electric railways in the United States, as disclosed at the Cleveland convention, is about 6 per cent of the entire gross receipts. This is less than it was a few years ago, but in the opinion of leading electric railway men, still too high. Some estimates disclose the accident cost to the Bay State lines to be 7 per cent of all electric railway properties.

Send in Insurance Petitions at Once

More than 16,000 persons have signed the Boston Evening American petition calling upon the Massachusetts Legislature to pass the bill filed by Frank A. Goodwin and this newspaper to establish a State Fund to provide compulsory insurance to Bay State motorists at cost.

All persons who still have petitions in their possessions are urged to send them to the Boston Evening American office AT ONCE as all signatures will probably be presented to the joint legislative committee on insurance next Wednesday when it meets in the Gardner auditorium to consider the Powers bill, sponsored by the insurance interests. The Power bill would repeal the present compulsory insurance law.

Four hundred taxi drivers, members of Independent Taxi Operators' Association of Massachusetts, declaring the present compulsory insurance "unjust and discriminatory," have indorsed the bill filed by Goodwin and the Boston Evening American.

A representative of the organization will attend next Wednesday's hearing in Gardner auditorium to oppose the Power bill, which is backed by the 67 insurance companies doing this line of business in Massachusetts.

The Power bill, which is similar to the present Connecticut law, under which fatal accidents have increased 35 per cent in the last two years, would wipe out compulsory insurance in Massachusetts. This, despite the fact that fatal accidents have increased only one and one-half per cent in the Bay State during the past two years under compulsory insurance law.

PASS RESOLUTION

The following resolutions were unanimously passed by the Independent Taxi Operators' Association, favoring the Goodwin-Boston Evening American bill, which would save Bay State car owners at least $7,500,000 a year on their compulsory insurance bills:

"Whereas, It is the sense of the members of the Independent Taxi Operators' Association of Massachusetts that the compulsory insurance law so-called, is unjust and discriminatory; and

"Whereas, It is the belief of the members of the said association that the Massachusetts Legislature of 1929 should take some action to correct the unfairness of the present situation; and

"Whereas, In our opinion House Bill No. 223 as introduced in the present session of the Massachusetts Legislature by Frank A. Goodwin is the only proper and desirable legislation under the present conditions, but would make more effective, if enacted, the original purpose of the so-called compulsory insurance law to indemnify the injured party;

"Therefore, be it resolved, That we, the members of the Independent Taxi Operators' Association of Massachusetts, in regular meeting assembled do unqualifiedly go on record in favor of House Bill No. 223 and be it further

"Resolved, That we use every effort and give our hearty support to this humane and fair legislation to the end that same shall be enacted into law, and be it further

"Resolved, that a copy of this resolution be inscribed on the records of the said association and a copy sent to Rep. Wadsworth, chairman of the House Committee on Insurance, and also a copy to Senator Hale, chairman of the Senate Committee on Insurance."

APPROVE BILL

Others who have recently indorsed the Goodwin-Boston Evening American bill follow:

V. E. ANTONELLI-BROWSKI, a merchant of 46 Main st., Webster. This compulsory liability insurance bill, I understand it, entails very small responsibility on the part of the insurance company, which, liable only when the insured, through his negligence, maims or kills someone. When an accident happens where both parties are equally to blame, only an unavoidable accident where no one is really to blame people killed, maimed and property damage done, every one involved has to bear his loss. The interpretation of liability should include at least all damage done by the party at fault.

EDWARD J. SIMARRO of 37 Lamont st., Roxbury: Enclosed you will find three signatures of persons to the Goodwin-Boston Evening American bill petition, requesting the Massachusetts legislature to pass it. I think, like many others, that its passage will be a big help to many families. At the present time there are many motorists who cannot afford to have their cars registered on account of the high rates of compulsory insurance. The rates are too high for the average working man to pay.

I am a mechanic and I see a good deal of what the insurance companies do when they are asked to pay a claim for damages done to a car. It is different when they have to pay a claim. I can remember the pay premiums regularly they have the plates taken away for nonpayment. If you have an accident it is like trying to get blood from a stone to get the insurance companies to pay for the damage done. I know of three owners who have had their cars tied up on that account. It is one of the biggest money-making schemes in existence and should be stopped. I wish the Boston Evening American and Mr. Goodwin luck in putting this bill across.

MEYER RUBENSTEIN, proprietor of Warren Motor Mart, Warren and Clifford sts., Roxbury—Enclosed please find signatures of my friends and myself who heartily endorse the Goodwin-Boston Evening American bill. I sincerely hope this bill will be successful as I know from my own experience as a garage owner that the working people and the poor are the sufferers. I want to thank Mr. Goodwin and the Boston Evening American for their work in behalf of the working people.

HARRY W. SHERIDAN of Worcester st., South End—Please find enclosed several signatures of persons who indorse the Goodwin-Boston Evening American bill. I understand the insurance companies throughout the State are out for the injunction proposed by the Winthrop legislator (Powers). Many of the companies are also circulating petitions of signatures, I understand, and some of the workers are being forced to sign their petitions or lose their help if the State fund comes in. Yet some of the insurance employes admit that in their department no extra help has been taken on for the compulsory insurance.

Inventor Bell Blamed for First Wrong Number

Wrong numbers—the bane of the telephone industry—may be traced directly to the inventor and founder of the telephone system, Alexander Graham Bell,

According to Catherine Mackenzie, who for years Bell's secretary and later his biographer, Dr. Bell was present in Philadelphia on the day, and the day the first telephone exhibit was judged. On his return to Boston he wrote a letter to his partner, William Hubbard, on July 2, 1876, but transposed the figures so that it actually was dated July 2, 1867.

This is believed to be beyond doubt the first instance of transposed digits that have plagued telephone service ever since.

BLAME BRITAIN FOR ARREST OF DE VALERA

Denouncing as unfair and unjust the recent arrest and imprisonment of Eamon De Valera, the Massachusetts State Council of the American Association for the Recognition of the Irish Republic has adopted resolutions protesting against the act.

Representatives from all the Massachusetts councils attended the meeting in Deacon Hall. The council contends that "the British Empire has furnished the world one more instance of the various ways by which she seeks to hold under her dominion oppressed peoples and to accomplish her own selfish purposes."

Dr. Joseph P. Tynan, president of the council, presided at the meeting. A committee was appointed to take charge of a show to be held in the Arlington Theater Monday evening to raise money for De Valera and the Irish newspaper fund.

MONTE BLUE IN RAILROAD FILM AT SCOLLAY

A roaring passenger train, monarch of the rails, thunders at full speed through Monte Blue's latest Vitaphone production, "The Greyhound Limited," at the Scollay. The star plays the role of a locomotive engineer.

Monte Blue

This fast-moving melodrama brings to the screen the fascination of railroading, and a story that crashes swiftly from the climax to another. "The Greyhound Limited" tells of a man who was weak and another who thought he was strong—of true love and false—of a girl whose worth was revealed under fire—of the wreck of a life and the wreck of a train—and with over all the shadow of the gallows.

The cast supporting Monte Blue in this exciting production includes Edna Murphy, Grant Withers, Ernie Shields, Lew Harvey and Lucy Beaumont, and was directed by Howard Bretherton.

Break all Records at Metropolitan

The Metropolitan Theater, with the all-talking picture, "The Dummy," shattered all existing box office records over the week-end by playing to the greatest number of people and largest gross business in the history of the theater.

The house record was formerly held by Gilda Gray's picture "Aloma of the South Seas," with Miss Gray and company in person. The next best was Gloria Swanson in "The Untamed Lady."

$25,000,000 Mansion Is to Be Managed by Mrs. Hoover

This is the third of a series on Mrs. Hoover, new First Lady.

By CORINNE RICH

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25—When Mrs. Herbert Hoover becomes mistress of the White House next month, she will automatically take upon herself the management of a full grown, man-sized business.

And if this business of running the most important home in the land were not so well organized that it can practically get along by itself, its nominal head would have to be an executive par excellence or she would be literally swamped in figures and details.

It takes between 50 and 60 servants, or rather "employes," to keep the executive mansion and its spacious grounds going, to say nothing of thousands of dollars partly donated by Uncle Sam and partly out of the presidential pocketbook.

Of course there is a very competent housekeeper, a former employe in the Boston store of Frank W. Stearns and hired by the White House on the personal recommendation of this very good friend of President Coolidge's.

This housekeeper takes the actual work of running the great house off the hands of the First Lady; but Mrs. Hoover will have to be supervisor extraordinary, checking accounts, approving menus and doing many other things of like nature.

The matter of keeping grocery bills down is something of no small importance to the premier housewife of the nation, since the President foots his own bills, except for "official entertaining."

He provides three "squares" a day for himself and his wife and a score or more of the servants, besides setting this table with the season's delicacies for such private entertaining as he sees fit to indulge in. If the mistress of the mansion can stay within $2500 a month for food alone, she's doing well enough.

As to state dinners, at which sometimes as many as 100 persons sit around the table in the great state dining room, $1000 just about covers one. But Mr. Hoover can splurge on this item, since money for "official entertaining" comes out of the governmental budget marked, "President's traveling expenses and official entertaining."

The servants, whose salaries range from $780 to $1800 a year, include, in addition to the housekeeper, two cooks, three kitchen boys, two butlers, three footmen, two housemen, four house cleaners, four maids, two laundresses, one fireman, four mechanics, 18 gardeners and laborers, and seven temporary employes.

Then there are four White House automobiles kept in army garages, five chauffeurs and three assistants.

The great task is keeping straight the items that Uncle Sam pays for and those that Mr. Hoover must meet. For instance, while the government foots the bills for the general White House laundry, the President must pay for his own personal washing.

Mrs. Hoover, whose menage has hitherto been small, will have a big job on her hands when she takes a turn at managing a $25,000,000 mansion with half a hundred servants.

OLD FAVORITE OF FILMS BACK WITH M-G-M

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS

Copyright, 1929, by Universal Service

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 25 Elinor Boardman, who spent most of her screen life on the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer lot, is back again after a brief sojourn with inspiration. While officially she returns only for "Redemption," opposite John Gilbert, there will probably be other pictures for her. What with King Vidor, her husband, one of M.G.M.'s chief directors and Eleanor with a public made up of M.G.M. fans, it is only natural that she should be favored wherever it is possible.

Fred Niblo, who directs Gilbert in "Redemption," the Tolstoy play that John Barrymore made so popular, has an unusually interesting cast. There is Renee Adoree, who plays the gypsy; Conrad Nagel, whose quiet conservatism is to offer a contrast to the spirited Gilbert, and Miss Boardman as the gentle wife, who will also furnish a contrast to Miss Adoree, one of M.G.M.'s special vamps.

HOLLYWOOD has been gossiping that Max Reinhardt will join Caddo productions and make a picture for the millionaire producer, Howard Hughes. As far as I have been able to learn the only part that Reinhardt plays in the transaction is that Lillian Gish, who was to have made a picture under his direction, will be starred in a special produced by young Hughes.

Reinhardt has gone to New York, where it is whispered he may do a few plays, but of course, there is nothing to prevent his return to Hollywood when Howard Hughes is ready to make a picture with Miss Gish. Lillian is under contract to Joseph Schenck, but since United Artists and the Caddo company have always been on friendly terms there was probably no trouble in transfering her contract.

I hope Miss Gish gets a good break and I hope that she will have the good sense to see that the suffering type of emoting women that she popularized in the infant days of the industry, has ceased to interest the public. Come on, Lillian, give us a new personality. Mary Pickford has done it, why not you?

WHAT will all the New York producers do when the time for rehearsing plays rolls round? There won't be a baker's dozen of important stars left on old Broadway at the rate they are pouring into Hollywood. We just get through gasping and wondering at one star or another when a new consignment arrives.

The Fox Company, 'tis whispered on excellent authority, will also do a minstrel show and they have signed that incomparable team, McIntyre and Heath. This pair of oldtime comedians has been cavorting before the footlights as many years as most of us can remember and we are none of us as young as we might be.

LUPE VELEZ sends a telegram to tell me that the reporters in Chicago and Kansas City are "crazy for her." In her own quaint language she says, "Gee whiz, I am happiest girl in the world. Everyone sweet marvelous to me. Hope New York likes me gee I am happy." No one could meet Lupe whether a hard boiled scribbler or a philanthropist and not be just "crazy for her." She is one little gal that is so real you forgive her anything she does that is unconventional and not according to Mrs. Price Post.

Lupe went to Chicago for the opening of "Lady of the Pavements" and she is going to New York for the same thing. I am willing to wager that they will be standing in line in the big town, waiting to meet the little Mexican whirlwind.

MUCH mystery is surrounding Robert J. Flaherty's New Mexico mission. He is supposed to be making an Indian picture with all the trimmings, color and what have you. That is as much as any one can learn. We do know he is in New Mexico getting his material from the original cliff dwellers known as the Acomas Indians and we do know as in his "Nanook of the North" and his South Sea epic, he is letting the Indians play the leading roles, a sort of nature study as it were, with a little geography and local color. Sounds very interesting and we will be waiting to hear more about it.

WE happened to meet Barry Norton shopping for apartments in the fashionable New Villa Eylsee built by Mrs. Thomas Ince. Norton who I believe has decided to move into the Ince house, has just been cast opposite Sue Carol in "The Exalted Flapper," with James Tinling directing. Another actor who adds to the picturesque atmosphere of Hollywood is one, Ivan Lebedeff. Lebedeff, with a monocle that is as deftly worn as that of Count Andres de Segurola, has been cast for one of the important roles in "One Woman Idea."

On the Fox lot, other people we have seen in our travels include Harry Northrup, veteran Vitagraph star who played heavies in Norma Talmadge's early pictures. He has the role of a prosecuting attorney in Corinne Griffith's picture, "Prisoners." Nice to see the old-timers get a chance.

DID I say that Viola Dana is passing? If so, she is certainly coming back and we are all for Vi who is a good little trouper any place you put her. She is making another "Quickie" and happy to be doing it. This time it is "Two Sisters," an original story by Arthur Hoerl, to be produced by the Trem Carr Company. I have seen plenty of our girls fight their way back through the Quickies and Viola Dana may do just that. Here's hoping. She is a sensible girl not to sit Micawber-like, waiting for a big job.

SNAPSHOTS of Hollywood collected at random: Dist.-Atty. Buron Fitts visiting the Fox studio at Fox Hills. Mrs. Ben Schulberg as a reward of merit, receiving a new car from her husband. Lena Malena making all the Hollywood girls jealous by returning minus all her superfluous weight. Conrad Nagel entertaining a party of friends at Vic Hugo's. Wilson Mizner in a snappy spring suit visiting his own cafe, The Brown Derby. Ruth Elder winning a dance trophy at the Montmartre dancing contest. Laura La Plante and friend husband, William Seiter, attending the horse show. Norma Talmadge doing a little spring shopping at Greer's. Buddy Rogers' friends assuring him that playing all the musical instruments at the Plantation is not necessary to add to his popularity. That's all today. See you tomorrow!

VAN DINE TALE FEATURE FILM AT OLYMPIA

By LEO GAFFNEY

The latest smart thing in talking pictures is "The Canary Murder Case" at the Olympia and Fenway. Although it lacks the brilliance of dialogue that enriched "Interference," it is more adroitly handled as a production and with its talkie technique takes a brisk start forward. The new film has a good story—one that is guaranteed to mystify—and that best of all talkie actors, William Powell; but these qualities are subservient to the film's admirable direction. Malcolm St. Claire's. Just as in his former silent photoplays, Mr. St. Claire allows the camera to tell as much of the story as possible and to obviate all the talk it can. Without any introductory yammering, the action is started on its way. S. S. Van Dine's exciting detective story is thus treated to be good, fast clip required.

William Powell

Mr. Powell and his rich, resonant voice are busy with the role of Philo Vance, most extraordinary detective since the Sherlock Holmes of Conan Doyle, or the Father Brown of Chesterton; Louise Brooks plays the short-lived Canary, and James Hall makes his debut before the microphone in one of the lesser roles.

A Belasco could hardly have done better by the supporting cast. There is Louis John Bartels ("The Show Off" himself), Gustav von Seyffertitz, and Lawrence Grant, each an accomplished actor of the highest order. These three are in Mr. Powell's class, but the rest of the cast is not so fortunate. James Hall is also at ease with his lines, Jean Arthur has an awful time with her "R's," and it is to be strongly suspected that someone else speaks Louise Brooks' lines for her.

THE CURIOUS QUIZZER

Every day he asks a question and pictures those questioned.

THE QUESTION

Do you think non-profiting city and State departments should continue to be exempt from legal liability in cases of accidents involving the equipment?

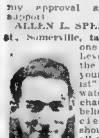
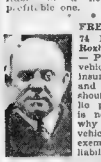
GEORGE VIRTUE, commercial chemist, 71 Fenway, Boston—I think the city and State should be liable in accidents involving equipment of all their departments. I believe, however, that the city and State should carry their own insurance and that the City Council and Legislature should decide liabilities rather than that insurance companies should do so.

GUS SMITT, 26 Salem st., Boston, cashier—The public should be protected in every way possible. The city and state should be held liable for all injuries to persons and property caused by their vehicles. Any movement to bring this about would have my approval and support.



ALLEN L. SPENCER, 1 Dimick st., Somerville, taxi driver—I am one of those who believes that "protect the pedestrian and your brother autoist" should be the watchword of every chauffeur. I also believe that sufficient insurance should be carried on all vehicles to guarantee the injured financial relief. The city and state should protect the pedestrian and autoist by insuring all their vehicles.

HELEN GREEN, 86 Cherry st., Chelsea, waitress—Yes, every city and state owned vehicle should be covered by insurance, regardless of whether the department to which it is attached is a profitable or a non-profitable one.



FRED JOHNSON, 74 Eustis st., Roxbury, taxi agent—Privately owned vehicles are heavily insured these days and the same laws should apply to public property. There is no good reason why city and state vehicles should be exempt from legal liability.

Six-Day Novel by Famous Author

By ROSITA FORBES

JEAN CARSTEYN was twenty-three, an orphan and (proudly) a journalist. She was afraid of nothing living or dead except a man with yellow eyes, whose name she didn't know. And this is how it all happened:

Since she was three months old, Jean had traveled up and down the world.

Her father had been everything from leader-writer to pearl-diver, and by the time she was twelve and sent to school, his daughter was equally familiar with gaily-proofs, copra-tramps and camel caravans.

Mrs. Carsteyn died and Jean was orphaned by an angry buffalo that charged just a fraction too quickly.

At eighteen the daughter was flying round the world interviewing celebrities, much to the advantage of the Daily Comet.

Jean had one great ambition. She wanted to cross the African deserts from Algeria to the Sudan, a matter of 5000 miles, most of them haunted by veiled Tuareg warriors, prophets, sorcerers, and slave-traders, to say nothing of possibly amorous sheiks and other equally interesting dangers!

Fortunately, until she was twenty-three and had written a novel about "Life" with a capital L, she hadn't enough money.

Then an Editor assigned her to a special story and she signed a year's contract and rejoiced.

"Aren't you nervous of this little African walk of yours?" asked the editor.

"I've never been frightened in my life, thank you," said the girl.

Leaving the office she slipped on a broken tread and would have fallen if a tall man, coming up, had not caught her.

"Oh!" cried Jean, as the stranger lifted her like a child and set her on her feet.

"Thank you, most awfully—" began the girl, looking up, and then, for no reason at all, she stopped. The man bending over her was so sunburned that he looked like an Indian and he had curiously light eyes. They seemed to blaze in the shadows, like the yellow eyes of an animal. And Jean was conscious of a sharp, uncomfortable feeling that was very nearly fear. She pulled away her arm, muttered abrupt thanks and fairly scuttled down the stairs.

At the rest of the summer those eyes haunted her. When she dined in a restaurant, as likely as not the man would be at the table, behind her, always alone, always smoking through an amber holder. He was long and lean, with a tuft of gray on one temple. Furtively Jean studied him and wondered why he had such a peculiar effect on her, for he never made the slightest attempt to get to know her.

It was all very absurd, she told

TWO INJURED IN AUTO CRASH

Two persons were injured early today when an automobile crashed into a bus of the Eastern Massachusetts Street Railway at Western ave. and West st., Quincy, ricocheted and was wrecked against a telegraph pole.

When police arrived on the scene, the driver of the automobile had departed. Witnesses stated that a man and a young woman, the latter unconscious, were lifted from the car and taken away in another machine.

William Sullivan of 25 Palmer st., Quincy, to whom the car was registered, admitted having been driving the car at the time of the crash.

In a telegram to Mr. MacMurray at Peking which was made public by the State Department today, Mr. Soong felicitated the American minister in connection with the exchange of ratifications of the tariff treaty signed last June.

Youth Held in Death of 2 Who'd "Squeal"

New York, Feb. 25 (AP)—John Barri, 24, ex-convict and former asylum inmate, was in the police lineup today, suspected of complication in the killing of Soro Graziano and his wife at Franklin sq., Long Island, on Dec. 15.

Police said they believed Barri drove the automobile in which the Grazianos were kidnaped and killed. The police theory is that the men with whom Graziano had held up several stores became fearful he and his wife were planning to "squeal."

5 RESCUED BY FATHER FROM GAS

Fitchburg, Feb. 25—Awakened by the suffocating fumes of coal gas, Placide Roy was barely in time to save the lives of his wife and four children who were overcome by the fumes in their home here early today.

Roy awakening in a semi-stupor induced by the fumes, crawled from his bed and staggered across the room to open a window, stumbling over the inert bodies of his two oldest children, Joseph and Henry, who apparently had made an effort to reach the window.

Roy raised the window and then went to the room where his wife and other two children were asleep and found them unconscious in bed. He hastily summoned Dr. A. D. Delisle, who put in a call for the fire department pulmotor.

By the time this reached the house, however, Dr. Delisle, with the aid of Patrolman A. J. Couture and Sergt. Daniel F. McKenna, had revived the prostrated persons.

The gas was escaping from a stove in the kitchen.

GENEVA EAGER TO SEE ROOT

Geneva, Switzerland, Feb. 25 (AP)—League of Nations circles are greatly interested in the coming of Elihu Root, expected here Friday to serve on a committee for revision of the world court statutes.

It was learned today that several jurists are beginning to advocate abandonment of the council's policy of asking the court to deliver advisory opinions.

Should the council drop that policy it is felt there would be no further difficulty in accepting the American reservation and the United States could join the court immediately.

$10 'GAS' TAX FOR 4000

Four thousand persons, many of them owners of private garages storing small quantities of gasoline, have received tax bills of $10 each for failing to report the gasoline in their containers at midnight, December 31.

The tax represents the excise on 500 gallons.

Commissioner Henry F. Long said the persons who received the bills were those who failed to answer his letter of December 26, which called for a report of the amount of gasoline in their possession at midnight, December 31.

EDUCATOR MAY BE IN CABINET

Cleveland, O., Feb. 25—Leaders of the department of superintendence National Education Association said today as they opened the four-day conference that prospects of a department of education in the presidential cabinet will be strong with the inauguration of Herbert Hoover than at any time since the movement to create such a post was launched.

Some of the delegates declared they had reason to believe the incoming President regards formation of the department with great favor.

Frank D. Boynton of Ithaca, N. Y., assistant of the department, both attacked forces he charged with opposing development of education, claiming a small wealthy class opposed, through a sense of superiority, to education for the masses and "a public opinion set up for the moron."

Birth control artists have furnished dangerous information to the youth; Hollywood actresses, divorced judges are scattering the brickwash of their courts broadcast; our theaters aim at an appeal so crass at times as to disgust; the press, civilization's greatest agent, is becoming the chief source of the criminals' information, where he finds himself featured; our churches are clinging to man-made creeds hundreds of years old, while their doors are closing rather than devoting themselves to interpreting the times to a befuddled and bewildered multitude."

A. A. U. Heads May Ask Nurmi to 'Retire' for Six Months

OFFICIALS TO PUNISH FINN

Track Heads, Angered by Nurmi's Absence From the A. A. U. Meet, Plan Action

New York, Feb. 25.—(AP)—Unless he can find a good alibi for his non-appearance at the National A. A. U. championships, Paavo Nurmi may do a competitive "fade out" for the next six months, by request.

There is no reason to doubt that A. A. U. officials are more than a little incensed over the "Phantom Finn's" failure to run in their own championships at Madison Square Garden Saturday night.

Nurmi, already under suspension, now must appear before the registration committee of the Metropolitan Association, A. A. U., to explain why he withdrew from the two-mile steeplechase an hour before that event was to be run. Unless Paavo can offer what the committee considers a legitimate excuse, the chances are that he will be plastered with a long suspension, possibly as long as six months.

Hugo Quist, who is generalissimo of Nurmi's campaign, said on Saturday that Nurmi had gone stale and that the famous runner also was suffering from a bad cold.

But some critics of the great Finn have another explanation for Paavo's failure to run.

These observers declare that Quist learned on Saturday afternoon that Eino Purje, another and younger Finn, would start in the steeplechase instead of in the two-mile flat race in which he was to have met Edwin Wide, the Swedish schoolmaster. Nurmi already had been clashed with and stepped-on and with Wide when he entered the steeplechase, and some critics contended that Paavo, rather than face so formidable a rival as Purje in the steeplechase, decided not to run at all.

Sharkey Concludes Training Today

By JACK CONWAY

Miami Beach, Fla., Feb. 25—Jack Sharkey will today complete training for his 10-round battle with Young Stribling which will be staged here on Wednesday night.

The Georgian has already ended the boxing end of his program and will take things easy until called to the center of the ring by Referee Lou Magnolia.

Sharkey weighed 191 pounds when he came in off the road today. This is his best fighting notch. All danger of Sharkey going stale has passed. He has regained the few pounds he lost during the hot spell of last week, and says he is stronger than at any time during his ring career.

Jack Conway

Sharkey continues to rule a 9 to 5 favorite in the betting with very little Stribling money in sight. Jack's impressive showing in his Sunday workout caused his stock to take a big boost.

He looked every inch a champion as he boxed two rounds each with Paul Hoffman and Johnny Grusso Gus Wilson, Jack Dempsey's trainer, saw Sharkey in action.

"Jack looks fit as a fiddle," said Wilson. "He should lick Stribling easily if he doesn't lose his head."

Dempsey also took a peek at Sharkey. The former champion asked Sharkey to pass up boxing until he enters the ring for fear he will meet with some mishap.

Johnny Buckley told Dempsey that Sharkey needed today's work out and that he would pick his punches so as to avoid any possible injury.

Dempsey told this writer that the advance sale has passed the $300,000 mark and that the show is certain to draw $400,000.

There has been very little betting on the bout here. This has been due to the lack of Stribling money. Southerners are rooting for the Georgian to win, but they lack the cash to cover the big commissions which have been sent here from the North to place on Sharkey.

It seldom rains here and when it does it is usually only a shower. As a result, there is little likelihood that it will be necessary to put the contest over a night on account of rain.

It has been agreed that Sharkey-Stribling bout will go on as near 10 o'clock as possible.

Stribling Approves Magnolia for Ref.

H. L. Stribling Jr.

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., Feb. 25—Lon Magnolia of New York is O. K. with me as referee of my go with Sharkey. Men selected by the Mass commission were not.

At the time the articles were signed Sharkey insisted that the referee must be named by the Mass. boxing body.

My father was given to understand that the request was merely a whim of Sharkey's, and that final decision as to the third man would result from a conference involving Jack Lempsey, Johnny Buckley, manager of Sharkey, and my father.

But when the time neared for naming referees, it was learned Sharkey wanted the written agreement lived up to; so father took the position that as long as he had agreed to it, he would go through with the arrangement and let the officials in Sharkey's home state name the referee.

"You named two men—Johnny Brassill and Jack Sheehan as alternate—and that promptly altered the circumstance.

FATHER had information to the effect that Brassill and the Sharkey-Buckley combination were pals. There is nothing wrong in a fighter being on extremely friendly terms with a referee but the picture doesn't look quite right when the referee is named to officiate in a bout where his fighter pal is one of the participants.

Sheehan ranks as one of the greatest referees in American ring dom. But Jack has been quite old and the vigor and strength of youth have gone.

Neither father nor I could imagine a man somewhere in his 60's being powerful enough to prevent two strong heavyweights.

And so, because we figured that Sharkey will want to clinch and hold, I don't want him to be too much of that, we felt that Jack Sheehan, wonderful as is his long judgment and impartial though he would be, was not suitable as a referee.

Father carried his objections to Dempsey and declared that, although he would bind himself to having a Massachusetts man do the refereeing, he would not stand for either Brassill or Sheehan.

Buckley stood pat for Brassill or Sheehan for a while but finally, in sportsmanlike fashion, stepped aside and put it up to Dempsey to name various referees.

EAGLE NINE CANDIDATES IN ARMORY

By JOHN GILLOOLY

A promising array of batterymen will greet Coach Hugh Duffy, who calls out his Boston College candidates at the Commonwealth Armory today.

In the entire squad Duffy will have but one pitcher, Hugh McNulty, who has faced the sturdiest opposition in college ranks. McNulty is a small right-hander who has dotted his baseball background with some first rate mound exhibitions in the past two seasons.

Duffy heads into the 1929 campaign with a husky lot of hitters and fielders, but a mound staff that is untested and looks a bit shaky at this stage. Yet the vet gran coach is highly optimistic and B. C. followers have their eyes cast toward the collegiate pennant.

GOOD HITTERS

Duffy has good reason to be cheerful. He has four members of murderers' row of '28. Any coach could be assured of some success with a quartet of sluggers like Al Weston, Paddy Creedon, Hank O'Day and Larry Gibson.

The B. C. coach has to scout up a reliable left hander and two good reserve moundmen. And Shaker O'Connor, a southpaw; John Dixon and Pete Herman should just about eradicate all worries.

O'Connor hurled for the frosh team a year ago. When at St. John's Prep he was considered the best college prospect in schoolboy ranks and turned all prep school and college freshman nines upside down while toeing the slab for the Danvers team.

O'Connor is a big boy, weighing 190 pounds, and is a football player of note. He was scheduled to help Joe M Kenney's gridsters last fall but was laid low with appendicitis just before school opened.

GETS BIG OFFERS

Dixon is well known to Greater Boston fans. He twirled for Norwood high two years ago and was an important factor in the school boy war between Norwood and Cambridge Latin for the mythical state diamond title. Dixon hurled for Norwood and played the outfield being a .400 sticker in school circles.

With the yearling nine a year ago he played first base and also did a bit of mound work. Dixon should be able to take his regular turn on the B. C. pitcher's box. He'll be handy to have around for he can play almost any position.

A Story of America's Mad Dance of Divorce

What Has Happened So Far

On the way from New York to Reno, DICK STUYVESANT meets FELICIA BRETT. They are strongly attracted to each other. DICK joins a bachelor friend, JOHN BERKELEY, nicknamed J. B. FELICIA goes to friends, DR. and MRS HODGE. DICK sees her the next day lunching with young PEGGY HODGE and two college boys. He flirts with BETTY ROGERS, a pretty little Southerner in Reno for "The Cure," and that night attends a wild party. The next evening he meets FELICIA and the HODGES at JUDGE COOPER'S. While driving FELICIA home, DICK kisses her ardently and FELICIA does not resist him. ANN HODGE warns her that too marked friendliness with DICK may imperil her chance of obtaining custody of her six-year-old son. FELICIA declares she will go back to New York and get the boy.

(Now Go On With the Story)

CHAPTER SIX

DICK and Felicia, with the top of the roadster folded back, were again driving—but driving, now, through the brightness of a late Nevada afternoon. Far to the right, a flock of sheep—thousands upon thousands of sheep—looked in the distance like a great patch of sagebrush; the frightened bleating of hundreds of baby lambs sounded persistently in the quiet like the wailing of babies in a deserted street.

Baby lambs, strayed from their mothers! Felicia sighed. She would wait until they reached some shady spot before she told Dick of her resolution to return to New York and get her boy.

Dr. Hodge says that people either love the West passionately—mountains and deserts and the ultra—or else hate it intensely. He says there's no middle ground." She sighed once more. "It was love at first sight for me!"

Dick was being very good, but he could not let that opportunity escape. "There is such a thing as heaven!" he told her, softly. "But I never knew it until—oh, just a few days ago."

Her mouth curved into a startled smile. "Please, Dick—"

"Oh, I won't!" His two hands clasped the wheel firmly, as though it took physical effort to keep them there while Felicia's hands, absurdly small and white, rested quietly on her lap. He looked straight before him. "I won't say anything, Felicia—now. But some day—"

"Some day! Now they were both silent.

Love—the cry of mate to mate—was a thing Felicia had never known before, wife and mother though she was, and she was bewildered almost to fear, by this feeling which she had for Dick Stuyvesant. She looked at him, now, from beneath her lashes. "We'll forget all about it!" she had told him, gravely, when he had greeted her with apologies for his conduct the evening before.

But had he forgotten all about it? She hadn't—and what was more, she didn't want to! She trembled as she remembered the vehemence of his embrace. Alexander Brett had never held her like that.

"Dick," she began, gravely, when they were seated side by side on a knoll overlooking the vast, still desert, "I'm going to say good-bye to you, soon."

"Good-bye!" He looked as though he had been struck. "What do you mean?"

She smiled at his emotion. He did care, then!

"I'm going back to New York," she said, and then she laughed outright at his face. "Oh, it's wicked to tease you! I'll be coming straight back, just as fast as I can! I'm going to get my son. But I'm not going for several days yet."

She told him what Ann Hodge had said the night before about the court's surveillance of persons in Reno for divorce. He listened gravely.

"Yes, I think you're right; you must get the boy now," he agreed, and smiled ruefully. "Possession in nine points in law, and all that—but how I hate to have you go! More than a week—what will become of me?"

She laughed. "You'll probably forget me entirely before I come back with the boy. Why, I don't know me at all! You, the dazzling dean, who was 'not woman' who bowed to me on Virginia street! A rather plain woman with a beautiful child!"

He caught her hands. "Felicia, I could never forget you—even if I never saw you again! I—"

She shook her head. "No. Dick don't say those things to me. You mustn't! Yet there was no disapproval in her soft eyes—only a happy, leaping light, and she smiled.

Felicia looked at Dick nervously, and her fingers trembled as she tore open the envelope. Telegrams, these days, might mean so many

"I'm going to pray hard until you're safely back again!" he told her. . . . It must have been the excitement. You're a darling!" Felicia cried, and kissed him.

'The Man With the Yellow Eyes'; A Great Novel by Rosita Forbes Complete in Six Days

herself and threw up her head and remembered that Africa, empty of ... yellow-eyed stalkers, was very ...

Any prediction for at the last moment, as the train was drawing out, a brown-suited figure tore open the door and swung himself into the carriage. It was the man with the yellow eyes!

Instinctively the girl made a move to get out but the engine gathered pace and a porter, running alongside, slammed the door in her face.

Three hours before the first stop! Jean sat very erect in the corner, her feet tucked under her, alert, tensely and indignantly. Her fellow traveller took not the slightest notice of her.

They plunged into a tunnel, a hand touched her knee. She leaped up, fumbling for the emergency signal. But she never reached it!

Long arms closed round her, tightly, possessively. Jean thought she screamed, but it may have been only a whisper, for she was crushed against tweed-covered sinews, hard as iron. Half stifled, she struggled, but, in spite of the swaying train, the man kept his balance and, when his aggressive ardour forced a breathless submission, he tilted her head back against his shoulder and, taking her hands under her chin and kissed her mouth.

The next instant she was dumped back in her seat like a sack of potatoes, and when the train ran out of the tunnel, her fellow traveller was relaxed in the further corner.

Jean, gasping, ruffled, rubbed her lips before she gulped, "How dare you?" and, with her fingers clenched on the loop of the emergency cord, was met by a stare of blank amazement.

"Is anything the matter? Can I do anything for you?" asked the target in a voice as detached as his appearance.

Jean began to wonder if she'd imagined the whole thing. She dropped back into her seat and opened her vanity bag. Its mirror showed her eyes wild and strained and read marks smearing the subtly tinted powder on her face. It had happened then but she wouldn't ring the alarm! She would show the madman at the other side of the carriage that she was even more indifferent than he!

A month later the girl was on board the Marseilles-Algiers boat and on the brink of an adventure that would establish her career. If she were successful—she MUST be successful—she could ask what she liked of Fleet Street. Why even the great Tranby Hillson, gold-medalist of every European geographical society, explorer, hunter and, it was whispered, secret service agent, hadn't done this particular journey.

"You're just ahead of Hillson," her editor had said. "Keep your eyes skinned. He's a dangerous Johnny to be up against and he likes going for it all down tamely while a mere slip like you walks off with his own particular game. He's a woman-hater, by the way, though he's acquired of every variety of harem in Africa."

Up and down the deck she tramped till a lurch sent her into the scuppers, from where she was rescued by a stalwart, young man.

He was a pleasant youth with features which a passport would have described as ordinary. She was later to know him well.

It was midnight when she arrived at the deserted station at Oran only to find the greatest difficulty in securing a room.

In a dark and very dirty street, her car stopped before a window-less Arab house.

A few slinking pedestrians had glanced curiously at the cab and its occupant, and suddenly one, bolder than the rest, pushed up against Jean and whispered in English: "Don't go into that house."

The girl started, for she thought she recognized the voice. But the Arab was already pulling her over the threshold.

There was nothing to do but accept the situation as best she could. So she found herself in a fairly large room with two windows—opening on the inner side of the house.

When the Arab left she found her door locked. So she was a prisoner but why? They probably only wanted money, but, before going to sleep, for sleep she must, she loaded her revolver and slipped it under her leather pillow.

The sun on her face woke her and her hand went out to the pistol only to discover that it had been stolen while she slept.

A Nubian brought on her breakfast and departed.

By the yard she could see the old man who had brought her into the house. He was talking to someone in European suit. His voice rushed through Jean's veins like fire, and she was just going to call out, when the nonchalant figure turned, giving a glance up at the expanse of wall. It was the man with the yellow eyes.

For a moment, Jean was literally frozen.

Here she was, trapped at the outset of her great adventure. She thought of all her preparations, and of the caravan waiting for her at the edge of the desert.

An hour dragged by and then the door was flung open with some ceremony and a tall Arab, muffled to the eyes in a white woolen burnous, wearing the gold dagger of a Kaid in his belt, was ushered into the room.

Dismissing the servant he shut the door while the girl eyeing the dagger wondered how she could secure it.

As the Algerian approached Jean nerved herself for resistance. A cry must have burst from her, for, as the man gripped her shoulder, he muttered in English, "Shriek as much as you like, it's most reckless, but, for the Lord's sake, don't fight or I'll never get you out."

"How did you know I was here? How can we get out? Who are you, really?" Oh, do tell me everything," urged Jean. The man dropped his face muffler and Jean saw the pleasant young men who had lifted her out of the scuppers on the Marseilles boat.

He told her his name was Jim Verner and that seeing her enter the house in spite of his warning, he'd set to work to rescue her.

Jean, fidgeting now that escape seemed so easy, leaning forward, lips parted, all the young lovely line of her short and eager, asked, "And now—can we just walk out?"

"I'm afraid it's not so easy as that. The old villain who owns this place would want a fortune for your release."

Jean's eyes were fixed on him, twin pools, with all sorts of reflections under the surface.

"I've worked out a fairly good plan," he went on. "I brought my servant Ahmed. He's absolutely faithful. I'll call him in and you can get into his clothes and walk out behind me."

Ahmed speedily appeared, and, as soon as the necessary exchanges of clothes had been effected, they started the perilous experiment. At the last moment, Jim had given Jean his spare revolver and told her to use it if any organized attempt to stop them were made. The Bedouin brought up the rear.

But their escape was not to be easy. The villainous owner of the house had gotten wind of Verner's plan and suddenly half a dozen Arabs blocked their way.

"I have six bullets here," shouted Verner in Arabic, "and I will account for a man for each bullet. Who wants the first?"

The Arabs hesitated, muttering, their breath tearing her throat like a sword, managed to release the bolt of the door to the street. The door opened inwards, and, as he felt the cool air, Verner fired at the ground an inch or two in front of the first Arab. The man leaped back, upsetting one of his companions, and the next moment the fugitives were in the open.

Several shots whistled after them, Jim only seized the girl's arm and hurried her down the street.

Ahmed gripped her other arm and, between them, the two men almost carried her into the radius of the first lamps.

The next moment they had applied into a ramshackle Victoria and, half an hour later, Jean was in a hotel bedroom.

Of course she ought to leave next day at once. Her camels were eating their heads off, the guides would be getting impatient, but the truth was Jim Verner had assumed proportions altogether out of keeping with her first impression of the pleasant young man on the boat, so Jean lingered on in Oran and learned a great deal about the desert which she hoped to be able to consider her own particular property. "Who are you?" she asked at last. "How do you know all this?"

They were lunching in a discreet corner of a tiled and whicker restaurant and a dusty palm crackled over their heads.

Verner, ignoring her question, told his companion of the mysterious veiled Prophet, who lived in an underground village in Thibesti. No man had ever seen him, for he received his warriors in pitch darkness and all they knew of him was his voice.

He had unlimited power over the Tibbus, he said, and was the only European who could boast that he had been received by the Prophet.

"Perhaps he'll ask me to tea!" laughed Jean. "The future was likely to be packed full of mystery and she was delighted.

Pleasant and optimistic, she was already making plans to solve the problem of the veiled prophet—"but a story for the Daily Comet!"

Jim Verner smoked, and, in his Egyptian way, told her that this underground place is Tranby Hillson and he won't talk about it. Jean pricked her ears. She'd never come across the famous explorer and the last thing she wanted to do was to meet him in the middle of her own desert route. "What sort of a man is he."

"Oh, a silent sort, always thinking up when least expected. Has a way with the natives and speaks a very little from here to the equator. Jim smiled and the girl, appreciating the way his face crinkled into impishness, decided they'd talked quite long enough about Africa.

Jean met Jim again. Was it a decision? Was it a crossroads. "You bet your life we will and soon, too!"

Flying the loveliest oasis in the Northern Sahara, Jean sought out the French officer ,who had organized her caravan.

He looked at her in amazement. "But, Mademoiselle, after your letter we did not expect you!"

"What letter?" asked Jean puzzled.

"Three days ago the famous Monsieur "Illson arrived here with a note from you, saying you had gone to join your project and to avoid any disappointment, he was sensible enough to take on your [illegible]

"Who knows?" shrugged the Frenchman.

In utter dismay the girl argued and implored.

There must have been some mistake. She had never written any note. Tranby Hillson couldn't possibly have stolen her caravan, but, as she protested, Jean remembered the officer's warning. Apparently the explorer was capable of any trickery to prevent a rival getting in ahead of him.

The French officer explained that there were no more camels in Figuig for a number of important desert raids, banded together for protection against desert nomads, had organized a vast caravan which would be ready in a week. Jean could not wait that long. Her passport was [illegible] for frontier but how can one [illegible] rest a zone." Every expedition into Thibesti has been foiled by the fact that not even the chiefs know the identity of their leader.

Dr. Bisch on Prevention of Diphtheria

By L. E. Bisch, M.D., Ph.D., Famous Authority on Health and Psychology

NO remedy for any disease exists which can claim more consistent and surprising results than can antitoxin for diphtheria.

Ever since 1895 this serum has been used so extensively for the treatment of this disease, not only in America but throughout Europe as well, that no doubt whatever can possibly exist as to its prompt and striking efficacy. Because of diphtheria antitoxin the death rate has been reduced to less than one-third, and were it used more promptly certain cases that now prove fatal would most certainly be saved. As Health Commissioner Wynne of New York City put it, 'Auburn has reduced the death rate of diphtheria from 38.4 to zero!'

Similar figures, proving conclusively the value of the treatment, can be gathered anywhere where records have been kept concerning mortality percentages from the disease before and after the general use of antitoxin.

Perhaps more important still is the fact that absolute immunity against diphtheria may be obtained by smaller doses of the so-called "toxin-antitoxin" used as a preventive!

Imagine! With only three or four visits to your doctor for simple and painless skin injection, your children as well as yourself and other members of the family can be completely safeguarded against one of the most terrible scourges that the human being falls prey to.

If you have ever had to witness the experiences of seeing a beloved one, especially a child, gasping for air, virtually choking to death from the diphtheria membranes stuck fast in its throat, you will readily appreciate what a boon to mankind antitoxin is.

And yet there are thousands of people who do not know that such a godsend exists.

Hence it is necessary that such an article as this be written as it is likewise necessary that the public be informed as to the merits of diphtheria immunization by every means possible.

It happens that New York City is waging such a public campaign right now. In the campaign are co-operated the health authorities of the county medical societies, the New York Academy of Medicine, the New York State Charities Aid Association, the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, the New York Tuberculosis and Health Association, more than eleven thousand physicians, newspapers and a host of other agencies.

I mention some of these to show the importance of such a movement and the high opinion in which the value of antitoxin is held.

Quoting Dr. Wynne again: "Not one within two years completely eliminate diphtheria from New York City just as smallpox has been eliminated. To do that, first we must educate the public so that the public will go to their physicians and demand that they immunize their children.

I beg of you, my good parent, to take this matter of diphtheria and its prevention seriously to heart.

Take your children to your private physician or to a hospital clinic and protect them from diphtheria, no matter how young they may be.

Don't be upset by any foolish gossip that you may hear for foolish and lying gossip exists everywhere—concerning the dangers of such injections. Physicians are all agreed that they are negligible.

Trust your doctor to know how many doses to give and how much each dose. That is his job.

But spare your children the ravages of diphtheria!

FADS AND FASHIONS

Extremely interesting is the knitted fabric which goes to make up some of the smartest bags and scarfs of the season. The bags are made in square or colored pouch shapes, and have narrow colored frames. The latter are varied and practical, coming in heavy suede cloth and kid.

A smart substitute for the ubiquitous buttons in the cuffs of your cardigan is a pair of heavy simple cuff links. An additional chic touch is to have the cuff links match the buttons of your blouse.

A twice told tale is the embroidered motif displayed in a two-piece woolen costume for summer wear. The colorful design first shows itself in an expansive manner on the jumper blouse, and then is repeated in a miniature way on the accompanying white linen slippers.

We'll hand it to handbags, for each new season brings a more charming variety than the last. Among the latest newcomers was an envelope purse of natural colored Panama straw, bound and trimmed in navy blue kid. Don't forget the straw slippers.

A merry trio for spring and summer wear is black and white and a bit of red. One trim bonnet shape of chapeau of black and white baku has a wide band of red grosgrain ribbon. Another chapeau just to be different is of red bangkok trimmed with a narrow black and white band.

VANILLA and the VILLAINS — That Sparkler Their Beacon — By Darrell McClure

YOUR HEATING COFFEE POT IN THE VOLCANO SAVED ME FROM A HORRIBLE DEATH, AND NOW YOU MUST HELP ME TO SAVE MY SWEET VANILLA WHO IS IN THE CLUTCHES OF THE MASTER MIND!
SIL DO MY BEST—BUT I'M ON A VERY IMPORTANT MISSION, MAYBE YOU CAN HELP ME! EVEN IF I SPLIT THE REWARD WITH YOU WE'LL BOTH BE RICH MEN!
AH, DROPPED BY THE PILOT IN HIS EFFORTS TO HELP YOUR BUNK HERO INTO THE PLANE—AND IT AIN'T GOING TO BE RECEIVED "OPENED BY MISTAKE EITHER!
THE KO-KO-KOHINOOR DIAMOND STOLEN FROM THE GANGES TEMPLE IS SOME—WHERE HIDDEN IN THE FOOTHILLS OF THE KASHMIR BAH-AHAHA MOUNTAINS—
HE MUST NOT GET TO THAT DIAMOND! SUCH WEALTH WOULD EVEN DAZZLE A PURITAN GAL LIKE MY VANILLA! SHE'S USED TO CARROTS, NOT "CAROTS"!
MY GOVERNMENT WILL COURTMARTIAL ME IF WE DON'T FIND THAT ROCK BEFORE HE DOES!

ABIE THE AGENT — He Settls for Less — By Hershfield

THEN ROME THE BRIDESMAIDS HOLDING THE TRAIN OF MY VEIL
WON'T THAT BE SERTING SHRIMP ABE, GET A BIG SURPRISE WHEN HE FINDS I'M TO MARRY YOU INSTEAD
THE KIDNAPPERS ARE ON OUR TRAIL—IF YOU WANT TO MARRY REBA ON THE 28TH YOU'D BETTER GET IN THIS FIGHT
WE MUST RETURN THIS RANSOM MONEY TO MY LODGE
OUCH!!
HANDS UP!!
MY RIGHT ARM IS WOUNDED
ALL RIGHT—THEN I SUPPOSE ONE WILL HAVE TO DO!!

THE BAER FACTS

SENATOR TOM REED and his companionate opponent, Borah, are at it again.

Subject, "Prohibition and What of It?"

From what we can understand of Reed's weaving and twisting harangues, prohibition is a blessing in disguise.

Borah, of course, manipulated the negative.

Borah always takes the negative in order to feel comfortable.

No matter what the argument happens to be about, Borah prepares for it by walking in the rain without his hat.

Thereby acquiring a stiff neck.

HAVE COLOR IN CHEEKS

If your skin is yellow—complexion pallid — tongue coated — appetite poor—you have a bad taste in your mouth—a lazy, no-good feeling—you should take Olive Tablets.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets—a substitute for calomel—were prepared by Dr. Edwards after 20 years of study.

Olive Tablets are a purely vegetable compound mixed with olive oil. Know them by their olive color.

To have a clear, pink skin, bright eyes, no pimples, a feeling of buoyancy like childhood days you must get at the cause.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets act on the liver and bowels like calomel—yet have no dangerous after effects. They start the bile and overcome constipation. Take nightly and note the pleasing results. Millions of boxes sold yearly. 15c, 30c, 60c. All Druggists.

Borah always takes the negative in order to feel comfortable.

No matter what the argument happens to be about, Borah prepares for it by walking in the rain without his hat.

Thereby acquiring a stiff neck.

Your No-man in a debate straddles the steeds of the Four Horsemen. He splits infinitives up the back like salt mackerel; when facts interfere with the truth, he discards them both, tosses propositions and adjectives to the crocodiles and foams at the mouth like a wildcat in a soap factory.

The venom of the sincere partisan drips from his polemal pronouns and when he points the finger of scorn at the object of his rebuttal you can hear his knuckles crackle like thunder amalgamating with the weather forecast.

People come from far and wider to hear two rostrum acrobats like Reed and Borah in a sister act.

There is only one kind of oratory in which Senator Borah is not proficient. And that is the silent prayer.

Senator Reed hopped a march on his distinguished confrere by taking the floor and nailing his brogans to it.

Reed spoke until he had jumped the limits of the Government cloture. When he got through, civilization and progress were panned oysters.

The Senate was so delighted at the caperings of this one-man grand jury that it voted to hear the rest of his stuff later.

Which meant that Reed had a two-day start on Senator Borah, who was compelled to stand by and muffle his exhaust within the city limits.

Reeds Marathon soliloquy was a masterpiece of fiction. He surrounded his opponent with facts, figures and left him no antidote for the referendum.

He not only exhausted literature, history and the furniture catalogues, but when he was finished he yelled, "Zythum."

Which is the last word in the dictionary. And if Borah looks it up it will give him a shock.

MEDBURY SAYS—

By JOHN P. MEDBURY

THE average automobile has enough horsepower under the hood. What we need is fewer donkeys at the wheel.

Excuse It, Please

When a Scotchman throws a bat the ring it's usually somebody else's hat.

Take It or Leave It

A railroad crossing is a place where a motorist becames deceased.

Among the Illiterati

The woman who was in a hurry to have her false teeth finished so that she could pose for some tooth paste ads.

Efficiency Experts

The salesman who sells alarm clocks to the rising generation.

Social Accomplishments

A lot of men save up for a rainy day and then spend it on a wet evening.

Vital Statistics

Reformers have a right to live, but not too long.

Public Improvements

There would be fewer automobile accidents if the telephone companies would put their poles further apart.

Our Own Vaudeville

Mrs. Brown—What are you doing at this shooting gallery?

Mrs. Smith—I'm taking a course in domestic science.

How Beautiful Mrs. Gittzendorf Keeps Her Slender Figure

Mrs. Gittzendorf, champion female outboard motorboat regatta favorite, knows that appetizing sweets are a menace to her trim figure. So she never eats food. Whenever Mrs. Gittzendorf feels hungry she nibbles at a cigarette. Even Mrs. Gittzendorf's house guests are not permitted to crunch loaf sugar or sprinkle the fattening carbohydrates on their bread and butter. She keeps a bowl of pulverized cigarettes on the table and serves diced plug tobacco with the coffee.

WHEN you feel that cold coming on—head it off with Bayer Aspirin. Almost everybody knows how these tablets break-up colds—but why not prevent them? Take a tablet or two at the very first sign of a cold and spare yourself a lot of inconvenience and suffering. Do the same when a headache threatens, or when you feel the least twinge of neuralgia, neuritis, rheumatism or similar pain. Bayer Aspirin is sure relief, as many have discovered. It is quite harmless, as physicians have long declared. It does not affect the heart, so you may take Bayer Aspirin freely. Use as a gargle for sore throat, to remove the infection. You can get the genuine at any drugstore. Bayer Aspirin. Bayer on every package and on each tablet identifies the genuine.

BAYER ASPIRIN

Aspirin is the trade mark of Bayer Manufacture of Monoaceticacidester of Salicylicacid

Girl Urged to Stop Demanding a 'Why'

By LOUISE RICE,
Noted Graphologist.

WHY should I insist upon demanding a "why" for everything? People in general do not like it, but still I have to ask because I want to know. What is the matter with me? Also, what vocation am I best suited for?

ELOISE, Malden.

Well, Eloise, you really are rather a stubborn little trick, and that's the truth.

2-23 Why should I be demanding a "why" every time? People do not like it but to ask a "why" I do want to know.

Just look at the downward pointed t bars that you use. This shows that you are argumentative and therefore I suspect the you ask "why" in a way which is somewhat aggravating. And I wonder if it is really because you want to know something, or whether it is not because you want to show the other fellow that he is in the wrong—that he can't prove his case. Eh, Eloise?

It is just as easy to get along with people as not if you are willing. It's the inner attitude of mind that makes the difference. One of the reasons that some people incite antagonism, even though they do not appear to do anything which warrants it, is because of this inner attitude.

I'm trying to help you, you see. So often we take a sort of attitude which is wrong and do not know that we are doing it. Better make up your mind, hadn't you, that asking "why" can become something of a bore. Stop trying to excuse yourself for it; stop trying to put on the other fellow the onus of the disagreeable things that happen.

You are very efficient, very honest, very sincere, a kind and sensible person. And these qualities, I assure you, are not at all common.

People of your temperament are physically active and quick in their movements.

It is really amusing to see how enthusiasm will record itself, as with a machine, in the way in which the bar of the t is used.

"Generally speaking, we may say that as the bar of the t rises over the letter, so the enthusiasm of the writer rises. Note, also, but in proportion as the bar of the t is placed low on the letter, so is caution and deliberation increased. The very placing of the bar there, and accurately, demands a slow, careful action of the pen, whereas the bar dashed on usually will fail to hit the letter at all.

Beginning with the first t of the illustration, in which the bar is low and carefully placed, we may see it sending forth its rays like a flashlight.

The first letter shows caution paramount.

The second shows gentle enthusiasm beginning to creep in.

The third shows enthusiasm really getting acknowledged.

The fourth shows it strong and the last shows it as almost the strongest element in the character.

A car needs a home. Have you a garage for rent? Tell about it and give location in the Want Rent Ads. That's the way to fill it.

CONFIDENTIAL GUIDE TO RADIO

By FRED TOYE,
Radio Editor

HERE'S what the stay-at-homes throughout the land will listen to this evening:

7:30—WBZA—Roxy and his Gang, with Jean Mignolet, Belgian soprano, as gangstress de luxe.

8:00—WNAC — Kansas School Daze. Fac-simile country school, with pupils as orchestra players in recess.

8:00—WEI—Voice of Firestone. Orchestra directed by Hugo Mariani in pleasing numbers grouped as Chinese, classical, popular and home numbers. Vaughn de Leath and Franklin Baur, soloists.

8:30 — WNAC — Coco Couriers. Song hits by orchestra and quartet. Burlesque of Kipling's "Empire" by Henry Burbig.

8:30—WEEI—A. & P. Gypsies. Always super-perfect. Listen tonight for "The Lament of the Irish Emigrant."

8:30 — WBZA — Automatic Duo-Discs. Popular tunes by the orchestra, and harmonising by the Duo.

9:00—WNAC—Physical Culture Hour. Proving that Hollywood has culture. If you're not a stickler for the exact definition. Talk by Bernard MacFadden.

9:00—WBZA—Edison Recorders. High grade musical program, not from records.

9:30—WEEI—General Motors Family Party. Largely classical music, performed by competent orchestra, with solos by Giuseppe di Luca, excellent baritone of the Metropolitan Opera Company. Unfortunately he's not doing any show pieces.

9:30—WBZ—Real Folks. Flapdoodle in a country village.

10:00—WNAC—Robert Bruns Panatela Program. An orchestra is only an orchestra, but a good cigar is a smoke. Let's be satisfied.

10:00—WBZ—Blue Danube Nights. N. B. C. studio feature running strong to waltzes.

10:30—WNAC—United Choral Singers. Tonight's program features Old English Songs. A consistently good half hour.

10:30—WEEI—Empire Builders. The Great Northern Railway revives Lewis and Clark, pioneers of the Northwest, in tonight's broadcast.

NOTE. Send sample of your handwriting to Miss Louise Rice, noted graphologist, for analysis. Write your name and complete address on unruled paper, in ink or pencil. ## FINE TEAMS IN TRACK MEET

Strong Brookline Team Favored to Win Over Good Competitors

By DICK McSWEENEY

The State Meet, the third successive indoor school meet in three weeks, is held at the East Armory next Saturday afternoon.

Practically all of the strong suburban outfits will enter this meet and compete against the best talent which the Boston schools have to offer.

Brookline's win at Andover Interscholastic meet makes the Wealthy Town aggregation a favorite to score another win at the East Armory, but Newton, Brookton, Lawrence and several of the Boston high schools will do their best to prevent top honors from going to the Brookline athletes.

As the field events of this meet are to be run off at 10 o'clock, followed by the running events at 2 o'clock, spectators will be able to get home earlier than they have been accustomed to in recent meets.

The program is as follows: 300 yards run, semifinals; 50 yards dash, trials, semifinals, finals; relays, class A; 45 yards hurdles, trials, semifinals, finals; 300 yards run, finals; 600 yards run, final; relays, class B; 1000 yards run, finals.

The field events will consist of running high jump, 12-pound shot and standing broad jump.

Frederick J. O'Brien will act as honorary referee with Clarence A. Moore in charge of the judges, Reginald Nash, John L. Sullivan, John Clausen, Joseph McKenney and James E. Mansfield.

Hugh C. McGrath, track veteran, will hold the starter's gun.

Commerce still holds to the lead in the Nub School Hockey League by a slender margin. That tie game with Mechanic Arts on Saturday will act as a stimulant to the Blue and Gray when it meets Dorchester in the last league game of the season.

Brookline's triumph at the Andover Interscholastic meet shows track fans once more that Tom Hines, Brookline mentor, is really a great track coach.

Brookline athletes will bear watching in the State meet on Saturday.

Everett's basketball quintet is scheduled to play Newton at Newton today.

The release of Brookline's football schedule for 1929 reveals the fact that Lynn Classical, playing at Brookline on Sept. 28, will be the first opponent of the season for the Wealthy Town team.

The rest of the schedule: Oct. 4, Boston English; Oct. 12, at Watertown; Oct. 19, at Everett; Oct. 26, Ringe; Nov. 2, at Cambridge Latin; Nov. 11 Somerville; Nov. 16, B. C. high; Nov. 28, at Newton.

Illness Hurt Green Track Team for Meet

Hanover, N. H., Feb. 25—When the Dartmouth track team returned to Hanover, after taking second place in the triangular meet in Boston, with it came the story of Harry Hillman's last-minute shakeup of the team.

Shortly before the meet was to start and with most of the team already on its way to the Garden, Mal Pratt and Hal Ripley of Brockton were preparing to follow their teammates when Ripley suddenly pitched forward unconscious.

Pratt summoned a doctor and then had to hustle to get to the Garden on time.

Can.-Am. Authorities Discuss New Members

Hartford, Feb. 25—The franchise committee of the Canadian American Hockey League met here and listened to representatives of three separate groups seeking a Hartford franchise in the league.

At the end of a three-hour session the committee failed to make known a decision.

The applicants were told that they would be notified by mail of the committee's decision.

Each group placed before the committee its statement of finances and plans for building arenas should it be awarded the franchise.

All three said they were ready for building immediately.

TAD'S TIDBITS

A GREAT many years ago in San Francisco Tom Sharkey was awarded a decision over Bob Fitzsimmons on a foul in the eighth round.

Wyatt Earp, who died recently, was the referee that night and declared that Fitz hit Tom below the belt.

The majority of those present thought Fitz was robbed, but Harry Corbett, who ran the biggest poolroom in town, paid off on the referee's decision.

Sharkey, according to his manager, Denny Lynch, had been given the worst of it in his fights with Choynsky and Jim Corbett prior to this match, and in order to get a square deal he insisted that Wyatt Earp, a former sheriff of Tombstone, Arizona, and a noted bad man hunter, be referee.

WYATT EARP died recently, and a great many stories have been written about him. Some of them were true and others were quite exaggerated. The following clipping is part of a story printed in a Minneapolis paper sent to us by Tom O'Rourke.

After Sharkey had read the clipping, read O'Rourke's letter.

"Earp, according to newspapermen, who covered the Fitz-Sharkey fight, presented a unique appearance when he came into the ring to referee. He wore high heeled boots and strapped around his waist were two 44-calibre revolvers. It was plain that Mr. Earp intended to be complete boss of the situation.

"As for the fight itself, Earp permitted Sharkey to rought Fitzsimmons at will, while Bob was warned for the slightest infraction of the rules.

"Fitz, in the eighth round, knocked out Sharkey with a right punch to the stomach. The blow appeared to be perfectly fair to impartial spectators but Earp immediately declared Sharkey the winner on a foul.

"FITZ rushed up to Earp and protested the decision, whereupon Earp whipped out one of his guns, pressed it against Bob's stomach and said: 'Sharkey wins on a foul and that goes. Hurry up and get out of this ring before somebody carries you out.'

"Fitzsimmons, knowing Earp's reputation, took quick action on the hint and got out. Earp refereed here in the 80's.

"Jerry Driscoll, oldtime boxer and trainer, now the oldest captain on the Minneapolis fire department, recalls when Charley Mitchell brought Earp to Minneapolis to referee his six-round bout with Patsey Cardiff in the late 80's.

"Mitchell, according to Murphy, would not allow Earp to referee or he would call off the fight.

"Murphy said Earp awed the vast throng which witnessed the fight at the old Washington ave. roller skating rink by appearing in the ring with his six-shooters dangling from his belt. Earp, however, had an easy decision to give, consequently no scandal developed, as Mitchell won by a wide margin from Cardiff."

DEAR Tad:

Enclosing clipping sent to me by a friend of Bat Masterson, from St. Paul, Minn. Bat and his friend were both pals of Wyatt Earp. I met Earp several times while he was visiting Bat here some years ago. He appeared a man, all through.

You, no doubt, were quite young at home in Frisco at the time it was held and may have seen the Fitzsimmons-Sharkey fight. If so, you will know that Earp did not wear high-heeled boots.

Nor did he wear a belt strapped around his waist with two 44-calibre revolvers. You will note by clipping this story has been written to make it appear sensational with these flourishes.

The Fitzsimmons and Sharkey managers mutually agreed upon Earp as referee. If Fitzsimmons got the works, then they were outmanaged by Denny Lynch, Sharkey's manager at the time.

You can just imagine Earp pulling a gun in a San Francisco ring and ordering Fitz from the ring. We all know that he would be locked and the key thrown away for a few months.

ANOTHER farce written in lower paragraph stating that Earp refereed the Charley Mitchell-Patsy Cardiff fight in the Washington roller skating rink in Minneapolis, Minn., in the early 80's shows how near the truth they got.

The only time in the history of glove fighting in this or any other country where two referees officiated in the ring in the same contest was the fight they state Earp refereed. This was at the Washington roller skating rink, Minneapolis, in the early 80's between Charlie Mitchell and Patsy Cardiff.

The referee was Bat Masterson for Mitchell and Frank Stevens for Cardiff. The result of the contest was so one sided in Mitchell's favor it needed no decision from either referee.

The newspapers were unanimous in the decision as were the spectators when Cardiff was helped from the ring.

Earp was never known to have been in Minneapolis then or up to his demise.

Sincerely,
TOM O'ROURKE.

Reigh Count to Start in Lingfield Race

London, Feb. 25 (AP)—Sporting circles quote the trainer of Reigh Count, American racehorse, as saying the horse's first run on English turf will be in the Lingfield Handicap April 6.

"A good deal," the trainer said, "depends upon the weather, but I hope to run him in the Lingfield. There is a possibility he may run in the Newbury race, but I think the Lingfield course will suit him better for a trial."

Famed Race Plunger Dead in New York

New York, Feb. 25 (INS)—Funeral services will be held tomorrow for David Gideon, 84-year-old sportsman, who died yesterday at his Lawrence, L. I., home. Gideon, one of the most spectacular plungers of the early '90s, won and lost several fortunes. His racing stable saddled three Futurity winners.

An Opportunity

Coolidge Should Name Stimson's Successor Before He Quits Post

If President-elect Hoover is well advised he will request President Coolidge to nominate to the Senate before he leaves the White House Colonel Stimson's successor as Governor-General of the Philippines.

Mr. Hoover is calling Colonel Stimson home for service in the new Cabinet—presumably as Secretary of State.

This conscription deprives the Philippines of the man whom President Coolidge drafted to carry forward the great work in the Philippines that is indissolubly linked with the name and fame of Leonard Wood.

Under the circumstances it would not only be an act of grace, but the part of wisdom for Mr. Hoover to compensate the Philippines as best he can for their loss by asking President Coolidge to name Colonel Stimson's successor.

Here is an opportunity for Mr. Hoover to demonstrate to the whole world that in the administration of the Philippines the Government of the United States is loyal to its trust. And that politics plays no part in the appointment of the Governor-General of those islands.

The Senate will promptly confirm whoever President Coolidge nominates to succeed Colonel Stimson, and our incoming President will be spared the necessity of turning down those greedy politicians that have already begun to press the candidacies of their favorites for this great office, which ought never to be filled by or for politicians.

In finding a worthy successor to Governor-General Stimson, President Coolidge would have no supporters to reward or console. He would be free to nominate for Governor-General the man best fitted to discharge its difficult and delicate duties, regardless of every other consideration.

Surely our incoming President will not forgo the assistance that the outgoing President is so free and so qualified to give. We congratulate Mr. Hoover on his opportunity. We hope and believe he will be quick to take advantage of it.

Seven Niagaras in One

Power Used, and Not Used

BOULDER CANYON, WHERE THE GREAT DAM FOR POWER AND IRRIGATION WILL BE BUILT

Thanks to action by Congress, and to hard fighting against the big Power Trust, the people of the United States will harness the power that lies in this quiet scene, where waters will be locked in between the giant walls of stone.

Through these high walls the waters of the Colorado River now pass down over our border into Mexico and out into the ocean, unused.

The power is wasted now, and the water itself is a danger, for, uncontrolled, it threatens every year floods in the Imperial Valley and elsewhere.

Soon a gigantic wall will rise as pictured here in outline.

Those walls form a natural reservoir, needing only a wall to close off the waters, cause them to rise hundreds of feet, to form a power difficult to conceive.

The waters imprisoned behind the great dam in this canyon will develop SEVEN TIMES AS MUCH POWER AS NIAGARA FALLS develops now.

In addition, damming up the water will supply irrigation and fertility to 2,000,000 acres of land and provide food enough for many millions of people.

The Colorado waters will also supply unlimited water for Los Angeles and other cities.

What a difference between using and NOT using natural resources.

Power monopolists fought against the building of this dam. They did not want COMPETITION. They stated openly that the Government had no RIGHT to go into the business of building dams, creating power, supplying water for irrigation, even if millions of people DID want it.

But, fortunately, hard work by Senators and Congressmen from California, hard work by newspapers, and public opinion overcame that idea.

A great wall will rise, shut off the flow from Boulder Canyon at the foot of these cliffs, compel the waters to rise 720 feet from the bottom of the Colorado River to the top of the dam, to fall from this great height, passing through power turbines.

Senator Capper, in his weekly, Capper's Weekly, gives interesting facts concerning this great national work:

When completed the dam will be 727 feet from crest to bottom of the river and 503 feet wide at the top. It will be the world's largest dam—in fact, twice as high as any now in existence. It will impound fifteen times as much water as the great Roosevelt dam in Arizona. The reservoir it will create will be more than eighty miles long and thirty miles wide in places.

During eleven months of the year the Colorado River creeps along sluggishly in its bed. But in June, when the snows begin to melt in the mountains, it becomes a roaring torrent. In that one month it is estimated the river carries out ten times as much water as during the remaining eleven months, flooding lowlands and carrying enough rich silt into the Gulf of Lower California, in Mexico, to cover all of Connecticut and Delaware one foot deep.

All this the Boulder dam will stop. It will protect 60,000 farmers, besides several cities and villages, in southern Arizona and California from being flooded out one month every year and dried out the other eleven months. The reservoir created by the dam will hold all the water coming down the river for eighteen months without going over the dam.

The water in the reservoir will be ample to irrigate 2,000,000 acres and reclaim 450,000 acres now unproductive, to which ex-service men will have first claim.

The bill provides an appropriation of $165,000,000 to construct the dam, but all of this is to be paid back with interest within thirty years from power and water rights. The dam will develop 600,000 horsepower of electricity, it is estimated, or seven times as much as Niagara Falls now produces. It will also give Los Angeles and twenty other cities a plentiful supply of pure water, another source of big revenue to help pay the cost of the dam.

The Beauties of Venus

By GARRETT P. SERVISS

IT cannot be but that millions of eyes in all parts of the world now admire the growing beauty of the planet Venus. She is visible everywhere men live. They see her at the same local hour in China, in India, in Australia, all over Asia, Europe, Africa, the Americas and the islands of the sea. She has many names in many tongues; myths and superstitions, fancies are wreathed about her like flowers. Coming back after her long absence in the morning sky, where only the scanty race of early-risers were present to bow at her altar, she brings a breath of antique incense with the memory of the Oriental star-worshippers who gave her so many titles recording her beauty and splendor and mystery.

She was the only planet that Homer spoke of—"Callistos," the beautiful. In ancient India they called her "Sukra," the Dazzling. When she burned like a lamp before sunrise, Cicero said that the ancients (he has become an ancient himself now) called her "Lucifer the Light Bearer. So when she lifted up her torch in the evening twilight she was called "Hesperus," Light of the West. For the Arabs she was "El Zohra," the Splendor of Heaven. The Egyptians made her the Bird of Osiris, i. e., of the Sun. The astrologers allow her qualities not inconsistent with the dubious reputation of the goddess Venus, but when she is "well dignified" they have good words for her. "Zadkiel" cryptically says that "in man Venus governs youth from fourteen to twenty-eight." One would have thought that her government lasted longer.

Always her return to the evening sky awakens fresh wonder and delight.

"Gem of the crimson colored even,
Companion of retiring day,
Why at the closing gates of heaven,
Beloved star, dost thou delay?

"So fair thy pensile beauty burns
When soft the tear of twilight flows,
So due thy plighted love returns
To chambers brighter than the rose."

The planet Venus is very nearly of the same size as the earth. She has an abundant atmosphere and receives from the sun, because of less distance—67,000,000 instead of 93,000,000 miles—about twice as much light and heat as the earth gets. The latest observations indicate that her rotation on her axis is slower, probably much slower than that of our planet, so that her days and nights are long compared with ours. Possibly they are weeks in length. Some years ago it was generally conceded that her rotation had been almost completely lost, so that she kept the same side always unmoved, but this now seems to have been an error. Not withstanding her greater receipt of solar radiation, favorable conditions for the existence of intelligent life probably prevail upon Venus. We may, therefore, if we choose, look upon her as a "world" in the full sense, a rival of our own, filled with life and its activities, though they differ widely in detail from what we know here. What reciprocity could be brought about between the inhabitants of Venus and those of the earth, supposed them to be akin in intelligence, is of course, purely a matter for conjecture. But astronomical means and methods of exploration are growing astonishingly, and a few years may throw a new light on this fascinating question.

We are now talking and singing to one another around our world; the next thing is to exchange talk and music with our neighbors in other worlds. Why not?

Three-Minute Trips

By TEMPLE MANNING

OF all the out-of-the-way spots in Europe where the inquisitive tourist may find surcease from the drab monotony of routine travel, few offer more picturesque possibilities than that tiny romantic Rusticania known as the Grand Duchy of Luxemburg.

Sprawling across almost impassable mountain heights between the Walloon region of Belgium and the French region of Lorraine, Luxemburg has been a strategic factor in virtually every European war for 13 centuries. Modern armament has rendered its intricate system of underground fortifications much less formidable, but even during the recent World War the ancient fortress of Luxemburg was one of Germany's most valuable and effective outposts.

Perhaps no city in Europe has a finer scenic background than the weather-beaten old capital of the diminutive duchy. Out of the highland rocks a stream has cut a steep ravine of serpentine shape. Running into the lower curve, a silver thread of rill water has cut another tremendous moat. Thus defended on all three sides, a great black, hollow crag juts out, supporting the ruins of Siegfried's castle and the stronghold of blind John of Bohemia.

Complicating this picture of medieval ramparts is a modern pattern of demi-lunes, chains of bastions, mighty vaults, redoubts, and a plainlooking, but intricate, system of fortifications. Below these are miles and miles of partly unexplored subterranean labyrinths by which perilous and distant battle points once were reached in the heat of action. Much of this elaborate system was destroyed in 1866 when Austria and Germany joined in an effort to blow up all the ancient fortifications to insure peace between the two nations. But enough remains to make Luxemburg still the strongest European fortification excepting Gibraltar.

Aside from its military aspect, Luxemburg is a thriving, prosperous and modern little city, boasting well-stocked shops, clean streets and happy people. Under an extremely efficient democracy, poverty has been banished from the land. There are no beggars and no squalor. Native costumes enliven the picture for the tourist, and bright cafes provide amusement for those who travel up and down the earth in search of variety, now as ever the spice of life.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

IT is a rainy day, and I have a toothache, and my corn hurts, and the furnace is busted, and my Boy Friend has gone away, and owe a lot of bills, and on top of that I've just had a call from one of those doggoned Optimists—

A Professional Beamer who will admit that any apple has worms.

Each problem that was men tioned got the glad hand and the glowing gullet from that boy.

In vain did I try to drag in my gloomsome—

He wouldn't have 'em — his gleamed 'em away.

Everything was for the best, he assured me, patting my peevish shoulder with a large, moist paw.

Every cloud was silver lined—f should count my blessings—To-roo-lee and to-roo-la!

So, for an hour, he sunshined all over the place.

And now I'm supposed to be all pepped up—a Regular Glad Girl.

Well, I'm NOT!

I'm so mad I could go right out and bite a floor-walker than which I can imagine no greater sign of dementia.

If there's anything that rouses the demon in me it's one of these Little Sunbeams who won't let me gloom while the glooming is good.

Generally speaking I have a fair ish disposition and take things as they come without putting up too much of a yell. But I do NOT believe in being glad all the time, nor do I believe that this world is just chuck full of things to be glad for

I do NOT believe that every cloud has a silver lining nor that everything is for the best.

I think that a great many things are decidedly for the worst and that it behooves every intelligent citizen to know about them and do his darndest to right matters.

I refuse to admit that this is the best of all possible worlds. I think that human beings and their institutions are gummed up with a lot of stupidity, intolerance, cowardice, selfishness, greed, malice and cruelty, and I don't believe in sitting down and putting wreaths on our brows and pretending we aren't. Rather I believe in broadcasting the bad news until we're so sick of hearing it, and so ashamed of ourselves that we snap out of it.

Glad all the time?

Anyone who can be glad all the time in the face of this world's misery has the psychology of a marshmallow.

Not that I advocate giving away gobs of grief every time we think of life—though even a good noisy griever is preferable to a Little Ray of Sunshine.

But snappy action—that's the stuff!

LOOK AT THINGS AS THEY ARE AND DON'T TRY TO KISS THEM OFF OR PASS THE BUCK. Be a man! Assume your share of the responsibility. Roll up your sleeves, spit on the good old whams and GET MAD!

GET SO MAD YOU DO SOME THING.

That's my philosophy. And I hereby issue it as a grim warning to anyone who's counting on making me and my office glad!

New York Day by Day

By O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, Feb. 25—Diary of a modern Pepys: Awake betimes and decided to chuck labor for the day. So to see Ray Long, Jr., who is becoming a stalwart lad and played for an hour or so with his toys, and great fun, too, which likely means something Freudian.

Lunched with my wife, who seemed as fair as any in the room and quite proud. Came Mrs. Alvarado to the table and presented Claire Windsor of the cinemas also a comely lass, then to see Aubrey Enda, home from Europe, and then walked on Riverside Drive.

In the evening to the St. Regis to dine with Grace and Ed Nolan of Los Angeles, and to see Earl Carroll's beautiful operetta, "Fioretta," afterward to the Midnight Frolic, and as pleasant an evening as ever I had in my life, there being no couple with whom I would rather be. To bed.

A FAMOUS courtesan who achieved oodles of front page headlines swept into a theater lobby gleaming with diamonds and other jewels. The effect was that of a Cartier window having an epileptic fit. A Broadway philosopher observed, "There isn't a thing in the world she needs except a little happiness."

THERE have been copious crocodile tears in the Tenderloin because a fabled straight-shooting gambler "weighed" in his heaviest loss. There is the legend of a type of gambler who never "weighs." The epithet is the most despised in that double-crossing world, yet there is proof in every great crisis the so-called square gambler does that very thing.

THE annual hunt meet at Millbrook in Duchess county attracts the top rung of the Social Register. It is a sport for not only the extreme rich. One must have broad acres, elegant stables and packs of hounds costing from $300 to $900 each.

There is a hunt meet lingo known oly to the initiated. It is, for instance, a faux pas to refer to a fox's tail as tail. It is a "brush." Nor are the red-coated hunters called "red coats" as they so frequently are in the press. They are "pink coats."

When the fox is caught that is "blooding the fox." But the cutest of all is when the fox is spied in the brush. The cry then is "Tally ho." Doesn't that make your blood curdle? And off they gallop—van tippy—van tippy, a hunting we will go! Afterward comes the hunt breakfast.

This is usually given by the master of hounds, who is the final word in eclat. The breakfast is around 11 a. m. and the hunters come in costume for the spread al fresco. It is a party, and what I mean is a party. Some hounds run until they fall and have to be carted home.

THE one-gallused hunter with his single-barreled shotgun at a modern hunt would look as foolish as some nit wit crying "Sweet Caps!" in a cigarette test. Such hunts often cost a hundred thousand or so.

THE modern huntsman is "dressed to kill". Whoops! the way I said it!—and his costume is acquired at an expense of more than $500. Sir Walter Scott intoned witheringly in his day against some sporty Nimrod with, "He comes in foreign trashery of tinkling chain and spur; a walking haberdashery of leathers, lace and fur." He should have beheld the huntsmen today. Stuffed and placed in a Fifth ave. window, they would tie another knot in Mr. Whalen's lovely traffic.

THERE is a story of a hunter informing his wife he was invited to one of the private preserves for grouse shooting. He packed his hunting things, but after departing his wife discovered his evening clothes, even to silk hat, missing. She went "gunning" on Broadway and, as expected, found him philandering with a bright blonde at a ringside table. Passing him with her escort, she inquired coldly: "How's the grouse, louse?"

Meditations of a Wife

By HELEN ROWLAND.

THREE-QUARTERS of the average woman's life is spent in wondering where some man is.

This is a wanton waste of time, energy and beauty sleep. Because any woman's attempt to keep tabs on a man is a lost cause from the start.

The only thing of which you can be absolutely certain, in this world, is that no man is ever where you THINK he is!

When you visualize him in faultless evening clothes, entirely surrounded by dangerous and alluring women or dining with a chorus girl, he is much more likely to be serenely sleeping with his mouth open—and dreaming of you.

And when you picture him sitting wistfully by his lone fireside dreaming of you, he is probably sitting in at an all-night poker game, or singing "Sweet Adeline" in a tearful falsetto, with his arm around another man's neck.

When you sadly imagine him slaving down at the office, he may be merely hanging around the hotel lobby, flirting with the telephone girl or joking with Tony, the barber.

And when you have visions of him strolling in the moonlight with another woman or dancing with a starry-eyed debutante, he may be sitting in his lonely den, smoking his pipe and conscientiously writing home to mother.

When you have been waiting for him a long, painful half hour and are shivering with apprehension at the mental picture of his mangled body under the wheels of a taxicab or lying on a stretcher in the hospital, he is probably only finishing a game of pinochle or standing on a street corner exchanging a few "good ones" with "one of the boys."

And, strange as it may seem, not EVERY man who leaves word that he is "in conference" is out in the park with a blonde. No, really, SOMETIMES he is in conference! You never can tell!

Nothing changes the future life or the weather, or a prima donna's temperament, is more UNCERTAIN than a man's whereabouts!

And nothing, except an aeroplane can travel faster than a woman's imagination while she is waiting for him. That is probably the reason why a man never TELLS a woman anything. He knows that the simple truth would be so much less thrilling than the things she THINKS about him.

But as long as she can conjure up thrilling, exciting and terrifying visions of what a man is doing while he's out of her sight, a woman's life will never be dull!

Boston American's Policies For Boston-New England

FOR BOSTON:

1—Clean streets.
2—Solution of traffic and parking problems.
3—Better pay for honest public service.
4—An airport SECOND TO NONE.
5—Erection of a MUNICIPAL AUDITORIUM to compare with any in the land, in order that Boston properly supplied with first-class hotels, may be the premier convention city of the U. S. A.

FOR NEW ENGLAND:

1—Weld the six States into a unit through the activities of the New England Council, thus creating a community consciousness.
2—Promote intercourse with Central and South America, encouraging New Englanders to return to the sea" again.
3—Keeping everlastingly at the job of telling the rest of the country all about our unique advantages as Summer and Winter Playground of the Nation.
4—Foster the prosperity of our industries through (1) greater efficiency in production and (2) the use of modern methods in merchandising.
5—Promote in every way such natural resources as forests, water powers and fisheries.
6—Assist New England agriculture to better marketing methods.
